HALLENBECK

Name variously spelled Halenbake, Halenbeck, Halenbeek, Hallenbake, Hallenbeck, Haulenbeek & Hollenbeck. The early Hallenbecks were of the Lutheran faith, confirming to some extent their German origin. They were among the earliest settlers in that part of N.Y. bordering the Hudson Riv. Early records of the Zion Lutheran Ch. of Athens, Greene Co., N.Y., indicates their prominence in Lutheran circles, but as their descendants married largely into Dutch families, they became principally affiliated with the Dutch Reformed Church.

In doing over the HALLENBECK paper I will be leaving off some of the later generations of the ones that don't apply to us. When I did up my first rough draft (whenever that was) I put in all the info - so some of the sources I used then may not apply now. And they might. So will write those in pencil and some day may get a chance to re-check and see if they should be included.

HARDING

ELEGY TO
"THE LITTLE MAN"

ISAIAH A. HATCH, SOUTH WELLFLEET, MASS.

Age 52 Years; Height, 3 feet, 7 inches; Weight, 80 pounds

Kind christian friends pray give one passing thought,
One moment pause the cripple's life survey,
This humble elegy consider nought,
A stern reality it doth portray.

The tide of fifty years hath ebbed away
Like a noonday dream of worthless record.
Nought but deep wrinkles and a patch of gray,
Denotes the ripe age of "Creation's Lord."

The bright-eyed boy the tender mother's pride.
The care-worn look deep suff'ring did portend,
The father's earnest hope expressed aside,
The doubts and fears exposed, that did impend.

With tearful eyes the loving parents kneeled,
To ask a blessing on their only son,
Kind providence the future unrevealed,
Portrayed the wisdom of the three-in-one.

Days, weeks and months pursued their onward course.
The sultry hours of Summer lent their aid,
Cold, biting winds and storms of eastern source,
Disclosed the fearful impost yet unpaid.

The slow and silent progress of disease,
Unchecked throughout two long and weary years,
Triumphantly each little limb did seize,
Spurning the proffer'd bribe, a flood of tears.

Day dawned at last, the fiendish shadow spared,
The victim's life, e'en prized more highly still,
Poor feeble frame with nobler forms compared,
The "Little Man" Vide the Creator's will.

Weak, shapeless bones, the frailest of their kind,
Support the puny form of boylike mien,
The poor gray head near mother earth confined,
Unenvious lot, contempt, unknown, unseen.

Yet pause awhile, review afflictions store,
The unseen hand successive blows did deal,
Nor mercy show'd till to the immortal score,
Five loving sister's names death did reveal.

And erst grasses green the red sand replaced,
O'er the neat little mounds sacred and dear,
The dwarf and his mother fondly embraced,
Her spirit had fled ere the dawn drew near.

Bereft of mother, who can read the thought,
The thousand little trifles of the mind,
Which to the rich and poor alike unsought,
Trespass upon the smallest of mankind.

The pastimes of youth, its sunshine and showers,
The voices and smiles of dearly lov'd friends,
The mother's fond kiss, and sisters' bright flowers,
Soft memory paints, as with sorrow it blends.

The mother's form had scarce been borne away,
Ere yet the fiend with slow and measured tread,
Sternly the father's sight, as lawful pray
Did claim and vengeance wreacked on aged head.

Soft Spring - bright Summer - Autumn's sober forms,
All have been gather'd to their final rest,
And hoary winter with his untold storms,
Sorrowfully awaits the last dread behest.

'Tis often said, and truthfully I trow,
That patience a virtue is of ancient date,
A gift of God alike to high and low,
A noble attribute of man's estate.

Poor little "Job" thy patience hath been great,
The promise sure awaits thee at that hour,
When thou shalt quit this earth its pomp and state,
For aye to sing the great Jehovah's power.

Think not dear friends that nature did him wrong,
In thus depriving him of loving friends,
Frail mortal man to thee does not belong,
The power to criticise the Almighty' ends.

The cheerful voice of sympathy pray lend,
Thou little knowest what the cripple feels,
The racking pains thou canst not comprehend
His wondrous fortitude this tale reveals.

Ambitious mortals censcious of thy might,
Remember as these lines perchance you scan,
An act of kindness doth itself requite,
Regard this maxim, read "The Little Man."

His pathway smooth, one little effort make,
The cripple's falt'ring step proclaims the knell,
Of fleeting time, when he alas must take,
Of friends on earth, a long, a last farewell.

If the year was 1696 or later, & the town was Eastham, the young bachelors were required to kill a no. of blackbirds annually as long as they rem. unm.

From 1640, until well after the Revolution, slaves were common in all parts of the Old Colony, & if there were fewer on the Cape than elsewhere, it was only because there were fewer rich men or extensive landowners. Not even white men were safe. some men renting out their indentured servants for a period of years

After King P.'s war Jonathan Hatch, of Falmouth, bought an Indian family, fa., mo. + son from Capt. Church. Parents were subseq. ransomed by their native friends for 3 pounds apiece, but their boy was to work for his freedom until he was 24. In 1691. Mr. Cotton, the Yarmouth min. allowed the Ch. to employ his Indian slave, Sexuant, as janitor, & pocketed the proceeds, 1 pound a yr. for himself.

In Falmouth, a slave named Titus was virtually free tho nominally the prop. of the Rev. Samuel Palmer. The clergyman was an enthusiastic though inexp. farmer & showed his wisdom by obeying Titus in all agric. activities; just as in doors Titus accepted the spir. guidance of his master. Thus the two lived on a cooperative basis that bore little resemblance to slavery in its accepted sense. Not until March 1780, was the selling of slaves in the Amer. market prohib. in Boston.

There is much confusion because of the two settlers in Plymouth Colony named Thomas Hatch.

Besides Thomas Hatch of Scituate, Mass., there was a Thomas Hatch, who was an early proprietor of Dorchester, Mass, who removed to Yarmouth, Mass. and later removed to Barnstable, Mass.

Four Families of Hatches.

Family "A" - descendants of Thomas & Elder William Hatch, brothers who settled in Scituate, Mass. about 1633-4 and whose ancestors are traced back to 1415, to Kent Co., England.

Family "B" - descendants of Thomas Hatch, whose only son was Jonathan - settlers of Yarmouth and Barnstable, Mass.

Family "C" - descendants of Philip Hatch of York, Maine, who settled there in the year 1637.

Family "D" - descendants of an Anthony Hatch, who settled in Norfolk, Virginia. His will dated 1688.

Hatch Arms

Arms - Gules, two demi lions passant guardant or.
Crest - a lion's head cabossed argent. (Burke - "General Armory")

Symbolic - The shield is red - in heraldry this stands for boldness, daring, blood and fire - "a burning desire to spill one's blood for God and country."

The lion is known as the king of beasts on account of his strength, courage and generosity. On account of these qualities he is a prominent symbol in heraldry, and used extensively to symbolize a strong, courageous and liberal-minded man.

"Thomas Hatch of Barnstable and Some of His Descendants" (1930)
by Charles Lathrop Pack

Hatch, as a surname, finds its derivation in the Anglo-Saxon "haec", Middle English "hacche," which in the 16th century became "hache, hatche, and hatch," meaning the lower half of a Dutch door, a gate or wicket, a trapdoor, or hatchway entrance to a stronghold or apartments below a house or castle. The surname was first written "atte Hacche." In the days of King Edward I (1272-1307), a family name frequently designated the abode, and for some 200 years following the names were written as "atte Water" and "atte Wood" which later became Atwater and Atwood, while "atte Hacche" became Hatch. It may well be supposed that the first "atte Hatch", founder of the family in England, may have dwelt at the gate or entrance leading beneath some feudal castle, possibly as its keeper or guard, a post of trust to be held by a loyal retainer only, for thence many a secret messenger and warrior came and went unheralded.

There is no county in all England so rich in its early history as Kent, and the royal city of Kent is Canterbury (Saxon Cantwarabyrig or "city of the men of Kent"). Of special interest are the bells of Canterbury Cathedral. In 1726 six bells in Arundel steeple were taken down and cast into a new ring of eight, after which they were hung in Chicheley Tower. On the 6th bell, the following inscription was found: "W. H. Beate Trinitati Compana hec sacra primo fusa 1408, secunda 1624. Josephus Hatch me fecit." The 5th bell bore this: "Joseph Hatch made me 1606." On the second was: "Josephus Hatch 1636," and on the first: "Josephus Hatch me fecit 1635."

Books of the Consistory of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Canterbury volumes, and numerous Parish Registers in the vicinity, chronicle the principal events of the Hatch lives and deaths, even unto the disposition of their worldly goods. (Canterbury Marriage Licences - from Cowper's Canterbury Marriage Licences, Series 1 and 2)

Before the year 1640 there had arrived on Massachusetts shores two men bearing the name of Thomas Hatch. That they were both from the County of Kent in Old England and in all probability kin, there is little doubt, although the degree of relationship has not been established. The first Thomas to arrive became an early proprietor of Dorchester and was there propounded as freeman May 14, 1634. He removed to Yarmouth, Cape Cod, where he again took the freeman's oath January 7, 1638/39.

The second Thomas Hatch was of Wye, County Kent, and was born probably about 1596. He arrived in New England presumably in 1638 and is called ★— "Thomas Hatch of Scituate." The research of Miss Elizabeth French for the New England Historic and Genealogical Society has established his ancestry. Looking back through the mists of the two centuries, we see that writers have not observed a clear line of demarcation in their chronicles of the two men; to this end it seems well to preface this record of Thomas Hatch the First, with that of Thomas Hatch the Second as given in the Register.

1st Gen.: John At Hecche, of Sellinge, in the hundred of Street, co. Kent, the testator of 1464, was born probably about 1415 and died not earlier than 15 November 1464. He m. Agnes ? who was living when his will was made. He was probably a miller. He was undoubtedly descended from some of the Atte Hacches f~~r~~ound in the hundred of Calehill, in the subsidies of 1327-8 and 1372-3. Contemporary with him were several of the name at Char~~l~~ing (probably his brothers and cousins). The mention of his lands in Westwell and Charing, places his origin in that ancient Atte Hacche family, and he is the 1st of the name in Sellinge or vicinity of whom record has been found.

2nd Gen.: Thomas^{2} At Hecche (John^{1}), of Sellinge, co. Kent, was born about 1442, as he was at least 21 yrs. in 1464, when his father appointed him one of the executors of his will, but was then under 24. No will or administration of his estate has been found. He succeeded to a portion of his father's lands in Sellinge. m. ? ?

Child:*Thomas, b. probably about 1465.

3rd Gen.: Thomas^{3} Hache (Thomas^{2}, John^{1}), of Sellings, co. Kent, the testator of 1530, was born probably about 1465. He held the manor of Hodyford, was assessed as "Thomas Hatche the elder" in the hundred of Street, in the subsidy of 1524, and died between 12 Dec. 1530 and 31 Dec. 1534. The name of his wife has not been found, but 6 children are named in his will in 1530.

4th Gen.: John^{4} Hatche the Younger (Thomas^{3}, Thomas^{2}, John^{1}), of Sellinge, co. Kent, the testator of 1535, born probably about 1495, and died between 13 Apr. 1535 and 26 Apr. 1536. His wife, whose name is unknown, is mentioned in his will. By the will of his father, proved in 1534, he succeeded to lands and tenements in Sellinge, including a "new house" which in the following year he devised to his three sons. His five eldest children are named in the will of his father.

His widow, Lydia, m.(2) abt. 1654 John Spring of Watertown, Mass. but continued to live in Scituate. About her the Plymouth Colony Records under date of 6 Oct. 1659 have the following - "Conserning a certaine woman, viz', the wife of John Spring of Watertowne, which was sometimes the wife of Thomas Hatch, of Scituate, which said woman hath liued about three or foure yeares att Scittuate from her husband, the Court haue ordered, that shee either repaire to her husband with all convenient speed, or to repaire to Duxburrow to the house of Mr. Alden, on the twentyeth of this p'sent month of October, to giue a reason why shee doth not; and in case shee shall refuse to attend this order, the Court will take a speedy course to send her to said husband." (Plym.Col.Rec. Court Orders, III, 174.) Evidently she satisfied the authorities as to her reasons for living apart from her husband, for in 1665 she was still living in Scituate, when, as Lydia Spring, she took oath to the statements which her son-in-law, Jonas Pickles, made to her as to his wishes regarding the disposition of his property after his death.

He was a shipbuilder at Scituate. On 18 July 1677, he bought of Phebe Hatch (grdau. of his uncle Elder William Hatch) the homestead situated on Kent Street, Scituate, and his ownership of this property has led some writers to regard Jeremiah as a son of Elder William.

In the same ship sailed his cousin, Lydia (Huckstep) Tilden, her husband Nathaniel and their children. One source says: Wm. ℘ bef 1633, settled at Scituate, Mass. & in a yr. or 2 ret'd. to Eng. for his fam. coming over w/them in "Hercules" Mar. 163 3/4. William Hatch and his family settled at Scituate, where he built a house on Kent Street, and was admitted freeman on 5/6 Jan. 1635/6. He returned to England, but came back to New England in April 1638, in the ship Castle. It is probable that his brother Thomas, with his wife and children and his sister Elizabeth Soan and her son William. came with him then.

In 1643 William Hatch was chosen the first ruling elder of the Second Church of Scituate, and in August of that year, he with his sons, Walter and John, appears on the list of those in Scituate able to bear arms (that is, they were between 16 and 60 years of age). In the same year also he was lieutenant of the trainband.

His home on Kent Street was on the first lot south of Greenfield Lane. (See Dean's History of Scituate p.279) In the settlement of the town, and all its activities, he was a useful and influential man. His will was dated 5 Nov. 1651 and his death occurred the next day.

HATCH

THOMAS^1 HATCH - b. bet. 1598-1605 (1603), ?England; d. bef. 27 May 1661, intestate at Barnstable, Mass.

(Inven. Taken 27 May 1661) m.(1) abt. 1624-1626 - ? ?

m.(2) abt. 1631-1633 - Grace Lewis, dau. of b.
d. bet. 27 May 1661 and 3 Mar. 1662/3

It is quite certain that his early home had been in County of Kent, Eng.; prob. b. in or near town of Biddenden in neighborhood of Cranbrook where at least part of his youth was spent. Believed to have been 1st of the name in N.E.; lived in Dorchester, 14 May 1634, when made freeman of Mass. Bay Colony at Boston; a tailor and a farmer. Admin. on his est. 3 Mar. 1662/3 (Plym. Colony Court Records-Court Orders, Vol. 4,p.31); letters of admin. gr. to Jonathan Hatch and Lydia, wife of Henry Taylor. rec'd. gr. of 2 acres at Dorchester 1634 (Bekins - Vol. 7)
He removed to Yarmouth 1638-9; was on military roll 1643; rem. to Barnstable in 1641; took Oath of fidelity 1657. (From "Rec. of the Col. of New Plym. in N.E." Vol. I Court Rec. (Nathaniel B. Shurtleff, M.D. 1855) "5 Mar. 1638-9 in list of those propose to take up their Freedom")

"A fair, formerly held in Biddenden on St. Simon and St. Jude's Day, now on Nov. 8, chiefly for exhibition of Welsh cattle, may have been the meeting place of Thomas Hatch & Grace Lewis, who is said to have been the daughter of a Welsh farmer and to have been skilled in agricultural pursuits. The story told of her wooing is that, being expert in the use of the sickle, she was assisting with the harvest in her father's field, two suitors were literally "in the field", and she decreed that her hand should be the award in a trial of skill, each man taking a third to reap and the lady in question taking her third. Was it a matter of chance that the third assigned to Thomas Hatch was next her own? Be that as it may, the story affirms that she cut a little over the line each time at the end of her swatch and thus made sure he would finish first. This tale having been related by a grandson of Thomas Hatch has been handed down through successive generations."

Tradition pictures Thomas as "rather feeble and effeminate." If frail, his pursuits could not have been as laborious as those of his robust neighbors. Perhaps a fondness for music (a violin being noted in the inventory of his estate) may have earned him the reputation for "effeminacy."

Mr. Otis, in "Barnstable Families," says: "Thomas Hatch was a church member and a freeman, a man whose life was a living testimony of his fidelity to the principles which he professed. He was not a man of note, yet he was an honest man and a good neighbor." And of Mrs. Grace Hatch, he says: "She must have been a second wife, for if Jonathan and Lydia had been her children, she would not have allowed them in youth to have been aliens from their father's house and exposed to all the temptations of a wicked world."

Prob. Ø from Weymouth, England in 1633? with fa., stepmo. and sister. He was bound as an apprentice to Lieut. Richard Davenport of Salem. His fa. & family rem. to Yarmouth, leaving him among strangers in a strange land, 1638. He deserted after two yrs. and went to Boston, but was caught. "A Quarter Court, held at Boston, the First of the 7th m°, 1640 -- Jonathan Hatch was censured to bee severely whiped, & for the p^r^sent is comitted for a slave to Leift. Davenport." He escaped to his father and was in and out of trouble in the courts of Mass. Bay Colony and Plymouth Colony. "1642, 5 April, Jonathan Hatch by Consent of the Court (Plymouth) is appoynted to dwell with Mr. Stephen Hopkins & the said Mr. Hopkins to hauve a speciall care of him." The Hopkins home was on the easterly corner of Leyden & Main Sts, on a commodious plot running through to Middle St. Opposite on Leyden St. resided the worthy Elder Brewster and across on the Main Street side stood the home of Governor Bradford. Probably Mrs. Elizabeth Hopkins, who d. bef. her husband, was living when Jonathan Hatch became a member of the family, which then included the younger dau. and their son Caleb. Stephen had come in the Mayflower from the "London quarter" and brought with him his immediate family, 2 servants or employees, making a household of 8 souls in his Plymouth home. Besides Caleb, he had a son named Giles. Mr. Hopkins d. bet. 6 June 1644 and 17 July 1644 and Jonathan returned to Barnstable.

When Rev. John Lothrop moved to a new home, Henry Rowley and family moved into the house which had been Barnstable's 1st parsonage, & here is where Jonathan Hatch courted & married his bride - trad. calls her a very youthful bride. He was a soldier under Miles Standish against the Narragansetts, in 1645. Jonathan and Isaac Robinson were first of white settlers at Succonnesset (now Falmouth), Mass. He built his house on or near that narrow neck of land between Fresh & Salt Ponds about ½ mi. so. or s.w. of present village of Falmouth. He had a farm of 80 acres.

"Thomas Hatch of Barnstable and Some of his Descendants" by Charles Lathrop Pack 1930

Hatch, as a surname, finds its derivation in the Anglo-Saxon "haec", Middle English "hacche", which in the sixteenth century became "hache, hatche, and hatch", meaning the lower half of a Dutch door, a gate or wicket, a trapdoor, or hatchway entrance to a stronghold or apartments below a house or castle. The surname was first written "atte Hacche". In the days of King Edward I (1272-1307), a family name frequently designated the abode, and for some two hundred years following the names were written as "atte Water and "atte Wood" which later became Atwater and Atwood, while "atte Hacche" became Hatch. It may well be supposed that the first "atte Hatch", founder of the family in England, may have dwelt at the gate or entrance leading beneath some feudal castle, possibly as its keeper or guard, a post of trust to be held by a loyal retainer only, for thence many a secret messenger and warrior came and went unheralded.

The Hatches of Kent, England

There is no county in all England so rich in its early history as Kent, and the royal city of Kent is Canterbury (Saxon Cantwarabyrig or "city of the men of Kent")....... Of special interest are the bells of Canterbury Cathedral. In 1726 six bells in Arundel steeple were taken down and cast into a new ring of eight, after which they were hung in Chichley Tower. On the sixth bell, the following inscription was found: "W.H. Beate Trinitati Campana hec sacra primo fusa 1408, secundo 1624. Josephus Hatch me fecit." The fifth bell bore this: "Joseph Hatch made me 1606." On the second: "Josephus Hatch 1636." And on the first: "Josephus Hatch me fecit 1635."

Books of the Consistory of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Canterbury volumes, and numerous Parish Registers in the vicinity, chronicle the principal events of their (Hatch) lives and deaths, even unto the disposition of their worldly goods.

see p. 12 1627 19 November. Thomas Hatch was presented by the churchwardens of Wye for teaching school without being licensed; and he was presented at every subsequent court until 9 June 1628, when he was licensed.

In studying the early Hatch families there were living not far distant from Canterbury at Sellinge, some six miles to the westward, as shown by wills -- John at Hecche of Sellynge 1464; Elionor 1519; Thomas, the elder, 1570; John 1535; Steven 1606.

By the will of Mr. Henry Hatch, called "Merchant Adventurer and jurist" (Anno. 25 Henry VIII), the parish and town of Faversham, beyond Selling and about ten miles from Canterbury, profited largely in public benefactions. He gave several estates in Kent and Sussex to mayor, jurats, and commonalty forever, the rents and profits to be applied to maintain the haven, creek, and highway within a mile of the town and "the ornaments of the parish church." This bequest came into the hands of the corporation in 1574 upon the death of Mr. Henry Hatch's widow, and was let at £66. 13s. 4d. per year. Two centuries later the income had increased to upward of £250 yearly. Mr. Hatch among his extensive charities gave money to make a new jewel house for Faversham Church (diocese of Canterbury and deanery of Ospringe). This church is supposed to have been built toward the end of the reign of Edward I or early in the reign of Edward II, when it was "new built" and the body and aisles new paved. The gravestones, many ancient with brasses, were removed to other and more conspicuous parts. Among the monuments stands that of "Henry Hatche, Merchant Adventurer, 1533."*

(* Weever's Funeral Monuments.)

Not far from the source of the picturesque river Stour, which boasts scarcely more than thirty miles for its entire length, lies Charing, which is counted in the Hundred of Calehill.* (* Lewis, Appendix to his History of Faversham Abbey.) Situated in the eastern part of Charing, close to the foot of a range of chalk hills, are the manors of Pitt and Newcourt. About the reigns of Henry III and Edward I, both had owners of their respective names; but in the reign of Edward II, William At-Newcourt was in possession of both. When this family became extinct, the Hatches, written likewise At-Hatch, became possessed of both, which they sold toward the end of the reign of Henry VII to William Warcham, who in the reign of Henry VIII alienated them to Robert Atwater.

Some six miles from Charing lies Ashford. Here the river bends northward, and wending its way past Wye, Chilham, and Chartham, which lie along the lovely valley, embraces Canterbury twelve miles beyond and midway to the sea.

5th gen.

In the opposite direction, some ten miles southwest of Ashford, is Tenterden, where dwelt Thomas Hatch whose estate was administered in 1568, and also ? his son John Hatch whose will of March, 1628-29, chronicles so vast an array of relatives that the suspicion maintains that he was kin to the old woman who lived in a shoe, and had remembered them all.

Mersham, Chart, and Longbridge Hundred lie about four miles from Ashford on the quarry hills. The highroad from Ashford to Hythe crosses it eastward, along the high ground over Mersham lees, on the north side of the mansion and park of Hatch which is situated on the brow of the hill. An account written more than a century ago called it "a very elegant building of brick embellished with quoins, balustrade, and ornaments of free stone, the apartments in it being superb. The park which extended to the vale below was pleasingly fertile and well watered."

Hatch is a manor and seat in this parish. In ancient deeds it was frequently written Le Hatch. Early in the possession of the Edwards family, the executors of the last of the name sold it in the reign of Henry VII.

Son of John the Elder — grandson of John the Elder

Thomas ~~Hatch~~ Hache, who made his will January, 1556-57, and Willyam Hatche of Mersham, whose will was proved April 29, 1572, were millwrights. John Hatch, son of the latter, also died in Mersham about 1594, his sisters being his heirs.

The long, narrow common at Smeeth village bore the name of Hatch Heath. At Rucking the manor of Poundhurst belonged in 1651 to Richard Watts, who sold it to Godfley; from him it passed to Hatch, who sold it to Read. He passed it away to Clarke of Ashford; Grace Clarke carried it in marriage to the Rev. Thomas Gellibrand; at her death in 1782 she gave it to her son the Rev. Joseph Gellibrand of Edmonton.

One of the six boroughs of Chislet, called in ancient records Chisteley, is the borough of Hatch.

At Chartham, near by Canterbury, the Manor of Shalmsford Bridge was a joint estate, of which Michael Belke owned two-thirds. This descended to Dr. Thomas Belke, prebendary of Canterbury. On his death in 1712, his heirs sold it to Mr. Hatch of that city, who was already possessed of the other third by virtue of his father's (Mr. John Hatch's) will, he having purchased it of one of the descendants of Mr. Thomas Petyt. He died in 1761, devising it to his great-nephew Mr. John Garling Hatch of Chartham.

Thomas Hatch of Wye, County Kent, England, and of Scituate, Massachusetts

Before the year 1640 there had arrived on Massachusetts shores two men bearing the name of Thomas Hatch. That they were both from the County of Kent in Old England and in all probability kin, there is little doubt, although the degree of relationship has not been established. The first Thomas Hatch to arrive became an early proprietor of Dorchester and was there propounded as freeman May 14, 1634. He removed to Yarmouth, Cape Cod, where he again took the freeman's oath January 7, 1638-39. Of this Thomas Hatch, first of the name in the Colony, and of a line of his descendants, this work is a memorial.

The second Thomas Hatch was of Wye, County Kent, and was born probably about 1596. He arrived in New England presumably in 1635 and is called "Thomas Hatch of Scituate." The research of Miss Elizabeth French for the New England Historic Genealogical Society has established his ancestry. Looking back through the mists of two centuries, we see that writers have not observed a clear line of demarcation in their chronicles of the two men; to this end, it seems well to preface this record of Thomas Hatch the First, with that of Thomas Hatch the second as given in the Register.

1. John At Hecche, of Sellinge, in the hundred of Street, co. Kent, the testator of 1464, was born probably about 1415 and died not earlier than 15 November 1464. He married Agnes ________, who was living when his will was made. He wasprobably a miller. He was undoubtedly descended from some of the Atte Hacches found in the hundred of Calehill, in the subsidies of 1327-8 and 1372-3.

   Contemporary with the above John at Hecche of Sellinge were several of the name at Charling, probably his brothers and cousins, who left wills not given in this article. The mention of his lands in Westwell and Charing, places his origin in that ancient Atte Hacche family, and he is the first of the name in Sellinge or vicinity of whom record has been found. His will names his wife Agnes and three sons.

   Children.

   (2) i. Thomas, b. probably abt. 1442.
) ii. John, b. probably abt. 1444.
   iii. William, b. probably abt. 1446.

2d generation

2. Thomas At Hecche (John), of Sellinge, co. Kent, was born about 1442, as he was at least twenty-one in 1464, when his father appointed him one of the executors of his will, but was then under twenty-four. No will or administration of his estate has been found. He succeeded to a portion of his father's lands in Sellinge.

   Child.

   (3) i. Thomas, b. probably abt. 1465.

3rd generation

3. Thomas Hache (Thomas^2, John^1), of Sellinge, co. Kent, the testator of 1530, was born probably about 1465. He held the manor of Hodyford, was assessed as "Thomas Hatche the elder" in the hundred of Street, in the subsidy of 1524, and died between 12 December 1530 and 31 December 1534. The name of his wife has not been found, but six children are named in his will in 1530.

Children.

i. William, b. abt. 1485; succeeded to the manor of Hodyford and other lands under the will of his father. Child: 1. Agnes, mentioned in her grandfather's will in 1530.

(4) ii. John the Elder, b. about 1490.

iii. Agnes

iv. Thomas, not mentioned in his father's will in 1530, and therefore probably deceased before that year. His existence is inferred from the fact that his supposed father, Thomas Hache, is called "Thomas Hatche the elder" in the subsidy of 1524.

(5) v. John the Younger, b. probably about 1495.

vi. Margaret

vii. Alice

~~4. John Hache the Elder (Thomas, Thomas, John), born probably about 1490, died before 1 November 1519. He married Eleanor ______, the testatrix of 1519, who died between 1 November and 12 December 1519, having named two children in her will.~~

~~Children.~~

5. John Hatche the Younger (Thomas^3, Thomas^2, John^1), of Sellinge, co. Kent, the testator of 1535, born probably about 1495, died between 1[illegible] April 1535 and 26 April 1536. His wife, whose name is unknown, is mentioned in his will. By the will of his father, proved in 1534 he succeeded to lands and tenements in Sellinge, including a "new house" which in the following year he devised to his three sons. His five eldest children are named in the will of his father.

Children.

i. Johane, b. probably abt. 1521.

ii. Agnes, b. probably abt. 1523.

(7) iii. Thomas, b. probably abt. 1525.

iv. Alice, b. probably abt. 1527.

v. John, b. probably abt. 1529; perhaps the John Hatche of Tenterden, co. Kent, whose wife Agnes was bur. there 26 Jan. 1588-9.

vi. Stephen, the testator of 1606, b. probably abt. 1532; d. s.p. between 10 December 1606 and 9 March 1607-8; m. by licence of 5 December 1603, perhaps as his second wife, Elizabeth Goldsmith of Maidstone, co. Kent, daughter of John and Ann. She m. (2) by licence of 11 August 1608 Samuel Pady of Maidstone, gentleman. Stephen Hatche is mentioned in his father's will of 1535, but not in his grandfather's will of 1530. He passed his life in his ancestral parish of Sellinge, co. Kent. In 1592 he was the defendant in a suit in the Court of Requests. Since he had no issue, he devised his lands to the sons of his brother Thomas (7).

~~6. Thomas Hache (John the Elder, Thomas, Thomas, John), of Sellinge and Mersham, co. Kent, millwright, the testator of 1556-7, born probably about 1513, died between 16 January 1556-7 and 16 February 1557-8. He is named in the will of his uncle, John Hatche the Younger, in 1535. He married Margaret ______, who survived him, together with two sons, who are named in his will.~~

Kent, born probably about 1525, died intestate before 13 October 1568, when administration on his estate was granted to his widow. He married, about 1552, Joane ______, who married secondly, before 25 October 1574, Richard Brissenden. Thomas Hatche was churchwarden at Tenterden in 1568. The account of Joane Hatch alias Brissenden, administratrix, exhibited 25 October 1574, names four daughters of Thomas Hatche, and the names of his three sons appear in the will of his brother, Stephen Hatche of Sellinge, in 1606. The will of his eldest son, John Hatche, of 1628-9 names the children, grandchildren, and even some great-grandchildren of Thomas Hatche.

9. William Hatche (Thomas,^{5} John^{4} the Younger, Thomas,^{3} Thomas,^{2} John^{1}), baptized at Tenterden, co. He married, probably about 1593, Anne ____________, who was living as his widow at Tenterden 22 January 1629-30, when her daughter Anne was licensed to marry John Beadle of New Romney. The will of John Hatche, the testator of 1628-9, names his brother William's children.

7th Generation

10. Thomas^{7} Hatch (William,^{6} Thomas,^{5} John^{4} the Younger, Thomas,^{3} Thomas,^{2} John^{1}), of Wye, co. Kent, and Scituate, Mass., born, probably about 1596, died in New England before 14 June 1646, when his widow brought her daughter Hannah to be baptized. He married, probably about 1622, Lydia ________. He lived for a while at Wye where in 1626 and 1628 two of his children were baptized. On 19 November 1627 he was presented to the bishop by the churchwardens of Wye for teaching school without a license; and they presented him at every subsequent court until 9 June 1628, when he procured the necessary license. The date of his emigration to New England is not known; but he may have come with his brother William, on his second trip to New England in the Castle, in 1638. He settled at Scituate, and was proposed as a freeman 5 March 1638-9.

His widow, Lydia, married secondly, about 1654, John Spring of Watertown, Mass., but continued to live in Scituate. About her the Plymouth Colony Records under date of 6 October 1659, have the following "Conserning a certaine woman, viz', the wife of John Spring of Watertowne, which was sometimes the wife of Thomas Hatch, of Scituate, which said woman hath liued about three or foure yeares att Scittuate from her husband, the Court haue ordered, that shee either repaire to her husband with all convenient speed, or to repaire to Duxburrow to the house of Mr. Alden, on the twentyeth of this p'sent month of October, to giue a reason why shee doth not; and in case shee shall refuse to attend this order, the Court will take a speedy course to send her to said husband." (Plymouth Colony Records, Court Orders, III, 174.) Evidently she satisfied the authorities as to her reasons for living apart from her husband, for in 1665 she was still living in Scituate, when, as Lydia Spring, she took oath to the statements which her son-in-law, Jonas Pickles, made to her as to his wishes regarding the disposition of his property after his death.

Children.

i. William, b. in England abt. 1624; emigrated with his parents to New England; lived at Scituate and later at Swansea, Mass., where he d. abt. 1702; m. at Scituate, 13 May 1652, Susanna Annibal, daughter of Anthony of Scituate. He joined with his brothers Jeremiah and Thomas in deeds in 1680 and 1682 (copies of these deeds are in the possession of Israel H. Hatch of Marshfield, Mass.). Children: 1. She d. between 1713 and 20 September 1716, when her will was proved. Jeremiah Hatch was a shipbuilder at Scituate. On 18 July 1677 he bought of Phebe Hatch (11, v, 8), granddaughter of his uncle, Elder William Hatch, the homestead of the latter, situated on Kent Street, Scituate; and his ownership of this property has led some writers to regard Jeremiah as a son of Elder William. He was evidently an Anabaptist, as was Rev. Charles Chauncy, minister of Scituate, for only one of his children was bapt. in infancy but several of them were bapt. at the age of 14 or 15 years. Children, b. at Scituate: 1. Mary, b. 14 February 1658-9. 2. Jeremiah, b. 31 August 1660. 3. Joanna, b. 21 March 1662-3. 4. Mercy, b. 15 April 1665. 5. John, b. 4 January 1666-7. 6. 11. Elder William Hatch (William, Thomas, John the Younger, Thomas, Thomas, John), of Ashford, Wye, and Sandwich, co. Kent, and of Scituate in the Plymouth Colony, woollen draper and merchant, born about 1598, died at Scituate 6 November 1651. He probably married first ________;* and secondly, probably at Thanington, near Canterbury, co. Kent, by license of 9 July 1624, Jane Young of Thanington, born about 1596, who married secondly, at Scituate, 31 March 1653, Elder Thomas King of Scituate (who succeeded William Hatch in the office of elder), and died at Scituate 8 October 1653. Her parentage has not yet been discovered, but it is likely that Edward Young of Thanington, husbandman, one of the bondsmen on the marriage license, was her kinsman, perhaps her brother.

*Although in the marriage license of July 9, 1624, William Hatch is described as a bachelor, it seems necessary to assume that this statement is incorrect and is probably due to a clerical error. In a will dated March 3, 1681-82, signed by Walter Hatch, son of Elder William, March 4, 1681-82, but never proved, Walter Hatch gives his age as "59 yeares," and therefore he was born about 1623. In August, 1643, Walter Hatch is on the list of those able to bear arms, that is, he was then at least 16 years of age. In the will of his father, dated November 5, 1651, Walter Hatch is named before his brother William. In the division of the personal estate of his father he signs first, and the document is in his handwriting. In various other documents in which he is named with his only surviving brother, William, he is always named first. Walter, therefore, must have been the eldest son of Elder William, and the child of a marriage contracted earlier than 1624. The unproved will of Walter Hatch and the document containing the division of the personal estate of his father are in the possession of one of Walter Hatch's descendants, Israel H. Hatch of Marshfield, Mass., who has kindly permitted the writer to have access to his voluminous family papers.

About 1634 William Hatch and his family removed from Wye to Sandwich, co. Kent. The statement that he was at Scituate in the Plymouth Colony in 1633 is incorrect, and is due to the assumption that the date after the names of the assistants in the records applied to all the names following. He embarked for America for the first time in March 1634-5, sailing from Sandwich in the ship Hercules with his wife Jane, five children, and six servants. In the same ship sailed his cousin, Lydia (Huckstep) Tilden (7, i, 7), with her hudsband, Nathaniel Tilden, and their children. William Hatch and his family settled at Scituate, where he built a house on Kent Street, and was admitted freeman on 5 January 1635-6. He returned to England, but came back to New England in April 1638, in the ship Castle. It is probable that his brother Thomas (10) with his wife and children and his sister Elizabeth Joan (12) with her son William came with him on this voyage. In 1643 William Hatch was chosen the first ruling elder of the Second Church of Scituate, and in August of that year he with his sons Walter and John appears on the list of those in Scituate able to bear arms (that is, they were between 16 and 60 years of age). In the same year also he was lieutenant of the train-band. (Many erroneous statements about Elder William Hatch and his family appear in various printed works, and it is hoped that the pedigree here given will serve in some measure to correct such errors.)

Child, probably by first wife:

i. Walter, b. probably abt. 1623; d. [illegible] May 1699; m. (1) at Scituate, 6 May 1650, Elizabeth Holbrook, b. in England abt. 1634, d. after 1659, daughter of Thomas and Jane of Weymouth, Mass.; m. (2) at Marshfield Mary Stable. He settled in the part of Scituate called "Two Mile," which was joined to Marshfield in 1788; and the house which he built there is still standing and is the property of Israel H. Hatch, his descendant. A will of Walter Hatch, dated 3 March 1681-2 and signed 4 March 1681-2, was never proved; for after this will was made his son Antipas became of unsound mind, and his father made a new will, providing for the maintenance of Antipas but leaving to his brothers the land formerly intended for him. This second will was proved. Children by first wife, b. at Scituate: 1. Hannah, b. 7 March 1651-2. 2. Samuel, b. 22 December 1653. 3. Jane, b. 7 March 1655-6. 4. Antipas, b. 26 October 1658. 5. iv. A son, newborn, bur. at Wye, co. Kent, 31 July 1628.

v. William, bapt. at Wye, co. Kent, [illegible] August 1629; emigrated with his parents to New England in March 1634-5; d. in Virginia, being on a journey to that Colony, between 13 September 1653, the date of his will, and 1656, when his will was proved; m. at Scituate abt. 1652, Abigail Heves, daughter of John "the Welchman." She m. (2) 14 October 1658 John King of Weymouth. At his father's death William Hatch became the owner of the house on Kent Street, Scituate, which descended from him to his daughter Phebe. On 18 July 1677 the latter, being then of Boston and a spinster, sold this house and 20 acres of land to Jeremiah Hatch (10, ii) of Scituate, who was her first cousin once removed and also her uncle by marriage, having married Mary Heves, her mother's sister. Children: 1. Lydia, b. at Scituate 28 April 1653; d. there 2 May 1653. 2. Phebe, bapt. at Scituate 19 March 1653-4.

vi. Jane, bapt. at Wye, co. Kent, 19 June 1631; emigrated with her parents to New England in March 1634-5; m. John Lovell, b. in England in 1627, s. of Robert and Elizabeth of Weymouth, Mass. Children: 1. John, b. before 5 November 1651, when he is mentioned in the will of his grandfather, Elder William Hatch; d. young. 2. Elizabeth, d. at Weymouth 21 January 1656-7. 3. vii. Andrew, bapt. at Wye, co. Kent, 3 November 1633; bur. there 6 November 1633.

12. Elizabeth Hatch (William, Thomas, John the Younger, Thomas, Thomas, John), her father's eldest daughter, born probably about 1600, died in New England between 1647 and 1654. She married first, in England, Robert Soan of Brasted, co. Kent, who was living 23 March 1628-9; m. secondly, at Scituate in the Plymouth Colony, 9 October 1643, as his second wife, John Stockbridge of Scituate, wheelwright. She may have emigrated to New England with her brother William (11), on his second voyage in 1638.

Child by first husband.

i. William, b. in England; d. in New England between 21 August 1671, the date of his will, and 29 October 1672, when Walter Briggs testified as to witnessing the will. He m. Dorothy ______. He settled at Scituate, where in 1663 he occupied lands at the head of the mill pond on Brushy Hill Brook, belonging to his stepfather, John Stockbridge. In his will he names his wife and his daughter Mary and also his "loving cousin James Torrey," whom he appoints one of the supervisors. (James Torrey was a son of Anne (Hatch) Torrey (11, iii), daughter of Elder William Hatch, and was therefore William Soan's first cousin once removed; and the reference to James Torrey in William Soan's will confirms the pedigree here given.) memorial stone to mark this spot.* We have reared no classic monument which time would mar, but we have laid here a boulder, which has withstood the frost and heat, the storm and sunshine since time was young, and will last till time shall be no more. Should the day come, as sooner or later it doubtless will come, when there shall be no Haydens here; when perchance this stone shall be covered with bushes or briars, yet we are assured it will lie unmoved for ages, and the pilgrims who shall remove its covering will find its lettering undimmed, and the polish of the glacial period still remaining. We have set over it for this occasion three flags; first the English. This was William Hayden's flag when he came to this place. It was the flag of his children, to the fourth and fifth generation. Then we have the Connecticut flag with its three vines, perchance representing the three towns. This was also William Hayden's flag, represent-

* The boulder is of flint stone, is egg-shaped, and its weight is a little over two tons. Its greatest length is five feet, its breadth three and a half feet. It lies half buried in the earth, and its height above ground is about eighteen inches. The inscription is not in parallel lines, but placed in sections where the stone offered the best surface. The material is so hard that the lettering cost eight days' labor, and the repair of 300 chisels. [The accompanying cut shows the inscriptions of only one side; it is necessary to walk around the boulder to read them all.]

Major Charles Frost had long been hated by the Indians. They found their opportunity for revenge 4 July 1697. As he was returning from church at Great Works, about a mile north of his garrison house, he fell into an ambush. Dennis Downing was shot with him and also Phebe, wife of John Heard. - - - - - The spot where he was slain is near a large boulder, on which is a suitable inscription. It is known as Ambush Rock. Tradition says that the wife of John Heard was wounded and tried in vain to remount her horse. She begged her husband to leave her and save the children at home. The Indians chased him and shot his horse under him near his garrison. He escaped and saved his house and children. Hon. Mark Dennett left on record a tradition concerning this John Heard. While out in the woods he was discovered by several Indians. He at once fled and the Indians pursued. Heard knew of an old hollow log in the woods, which he gained unperceived by the Indians, having killed his dog that he might not be betrayed. There he lay concealed. The Indians in their pursuit came and sat down on the log for rest. Heard listened to their conversation and heard them threaten what they would do to John Heard if they should catch him. He had previously distinguished himself in the Indian wars. In due time he emerged from his hiding place and returned home safely.

Pike's brief account of Frost's death is as follows: "Major Charles Frost slain by the Indians (as returning from meeting betwixt Smith's garrison and his own) also Dennis Downing and Phebe Heard slain at the same time and John Heard wounded."

"A History & Genealogy of the Family of Hurd in the United States
by Dena D. Hurd (1910)

P.15 John Heard of Dover, N.H. had his English ancestry in the county of Devonshire and is of ancient origin.

P.18 In 1652 John Heard removed from York, Maine, to Dover, N.H.; and on the spot known as "Garrison Hill" built the "Heard Garrison House" overlooking the Cocheco River, immortalized in Whittier's "Snow Bound."
On a quiet night in June, 1689, beneath the cover of a darkened moon two squaws knocked for admission upon each of the 5 barred doors of the Garrison houses, into 3 of which they were admitted, given food and shelter. In the night, at "Heards" the barking of a dog awakened the sleeping inmates and plunged them into the midst of the terrible massacre of 1689. In the darkness many escaped, but all the houses except one were destroyed. The "Heard Garrison House," with its battered walls, telling of nearly 50 yrs. of defense from savages of the most ferocious of Indian tribes, stands today a monument to those brave & valiant men & their patient wives.

P.279 The name "Heard" is from the Anglo-Saxon "Arda" (Hard and Strong) from which came "Ard," "Erd" and "Heard." The English class pronounced their "e," "h," "gh," "ough," &c, as no one else ever could.

William Heard (1) of Devonshire, England.
The first record of this name to be found in the U.S. is the simple fact that "William Heard, of Devonshire, England, arrived on ship Ann, at Plymouth, Mass, August —, 1923."

page 281 John¹ Heard, Dover, N.H.

"On the 22d day of Oct., 1640, the people of Dover, N.H., estab. a renewed form of gov't." (Historical memoranda concerning persons and places in old Dover, by John Scales) In 1614 Capt. John Smith sailed up the Piscataqua River, so did Martin Pring as early as 1603, but the latter tells in his journal, "we found goodly groves and woods --- sundry sorts of beasts --- but no Sassafras" the latter was considered by the colonists so absolutely indispensable, being the panacea of all ills of the flesh. The "sassafras tea" was considered all important, and a skillful "brewer" of that "tea" brewed so they knew how to brew it, served to keep the general system in order, assuring sufficient reserve vitality to ward off "colds and fevers." Finding "no sassafras," the beautiful woods and

Page 282 streams were left in loneliness until 1623, when, 3 yrs. after the Mayflower landed at Plymouth; Edward & William Hilton established themselves at Dover Point. This 1st settlement in N.H. did not progress rapidly, for in 1633 the "good ship James, which was but 8 weeks from Gravesend to Salem," brought many settlers, who under Lords Say and Brooke scattered in various directions. Among them, according to Governor Winthrop's Boston Records, the ship "brought Captain Wiggin and about 30, with one Mr. Leverich, a godly minister, to Piscataqua (which the Lord Say and the Lord Brooke had purchased of the Bristol (England) men) and about 40 for Virginia and about 20 for this place (Boston) and about 60 cattle."

It is not definitely known whether John Heard came on this ship or one of the many vessels which landed during those years. In the document, "Combination for Government by ye people ~~of~~ at Pascataquack, 1640" as copied by the historian, John S. Jeness, Esq., which is a long document, "signed by 42 men," there appears the name of John Heard.

In 1640 there was granted to John Heard "6 yackers (acres) of land in Cochecu March." John Heard m. Elizabeth Hull, daughter of Rev. Joseph Hull, of York, Maine, a minister of the Church of England.

John Heard was 1 of the principal men of the settlement, and he cont'd. to reside there, although by the records we find him frequently at York, the home of his wife's parents and where some of their ch. were born.

In 1665 John Heard's name appears with those of Elder Wentworth and John Bickford and Lieut. Hall as a committee to settle any disputes. In 1661 John Heard was chosen with 2 others as surveyors; next yr. he was chosen "Constabell for Cochico." There seems to have been but little trouble at the beginning with the Indians, but by 1668 the red men began to resent the encroachment upon their hunting grounds & began their depredations. P. 283

In 1667 these devout christians built a "bulwark around their beloved little meeting-house that they might be privileged to worship in peace, the many depredations by the Indians, including the massacre of small companies returning from the church, caused the men of the town to build garrison houses and in 1668 there were 6 erected at Cocheco, 1 at Bellamy, 2 at Back River and 12 at Oyster, these houses were built of strong timbers and originally had 2 rooms below and one overhead; in some instances the upper story projected over the ground space below, and enabled the occupants to pour forth a volley of shot and bullets upon the enemy, or to quench fire when attempts were made by the Indians to burn the house. Strong barricades were built around the homes, and into these, at nightfall, the entire inhabitants gathered. ¶ For 14 yrs. these brave men & patient women battled for their lives and the maintenance of their families. The Indians were aroused; Hope Hood, the son of Robin Hood, was head Sag

Page 5/ sagamore of all the hunting grounds in that region, and longed for opportunity for an outbreak.

At the beginning of King Philip's War every man was compelled to use his best efforts to protect his own family and assist with that of his weaker neighbor.

In the history of all the Indian warfare have we to record no more treachery, cunning and intense persistence by "the "red men of the North" than at the settlement immortalized in Whittier's "Snowbound." Dover was the scene of the first bloodshed, and was destined to be the longest persecuted. In the last massacre, "John Evans, brother of Joseph Evans, whose granddaughter was the mother of Whittier, the poet, was wounded, scalped & left for dead, though he revived." ("Old Dover, New Hampshire," by Caroline Harwood Garland)

P. 284 The lines in "Snowbound" refer to this terrible deed thus: "Our mother, while she turned her wheel,
Or run the new knit stocking heel,
Told how the Indian hordes came down
At midnight on Cochico town,
And how her own great-uncle bore
His cruel scalp-mark to fourscore."

A few extracts from the same source, copied from the journal of the faithful Rev. John Pike, who held the Dover Christians together in faith and hope, came to the reader 2 hundred and 25 years later as reveal.

"July 18, 1684: The Indians fell suddenly upon Oyster River at the break of day, took the garrison (being deserted and not ~~protected~~ defended), killed and carried away 94 persons and burnt 13 houses."

"May 10, 1693: Tobias Hanson killed by the Indians as he traveled the path near the west corner of Thomas Downs field."

"May 7, 1696: John Church, Sr., slain by the Indians as he traveled to seek his horse upon a little hill betwixt Cochecs and Tole-end."

"July 26, 1696: Being sacrament day. An ambush of Indians laid between Ison's field and Tobias Hanson's orchard; shot upon the people returning from meetings."

The Heard Garrison House was the only one that withstood the Massacre of June 27, 1689, when Chief Mesandowie, under the guise of a friendly visit, learned the situation of the garrisons, only to further enable his followers to perpetrate their plans for a massacre. they burned, killed, scalped and carried away many woman & children.

For more than 100 yrs. the settlers of New Hampshire were the victims of the treachery and avarice of the Indian, who, when angered, knew no such diplomacy as a treaty of peace. they cont'd. their outbreaks, and had not known a day of peace, when the American Revolution against England threw them again into battle.

Tristram (13) Heard, 12th child of John(1), was K. by the Indians Aug. 1723, when he was 56 yrs. of age. He was at this time resident of Heard Garrison House.

[someone wrote in pencil - DID NOT DIE until May 1784. Tristram Heard who was K. B. I. Aug. 1723 was son of Tristram(2) John(1)]

Page 285 At this time 3 little daughters of Joseph Ham, son of Mary(5) Heard and John Ham, were pursued by the red men. Little Mary, the eldest of the 3, escaped by the swiftness of her feet, but as she ran she could feel the breath of the red man fanning her cheeks as his companion jeered him for not being able to out-run a "white squaw." Her parents heard shots fired and hastening to the scene met little Mary in her mad flight, drove the red men away but they took the other 2 girls w/ them, and later their mo. made the journey to Canada and w/ much difficulty obtained possession of her daughters again.

Experience Otis-Heard, wife of Samuel(11), was among those wounded in the attack, June 26, 1696, as the people of Dover were returning from church. On July 4, 1697 as a party was returning from Newichwannock, where they had been attending "meeting," they were attacked at the spot long known as "Ambush" and several were killed.

Page 9: John (9) was riding on horseback and behind him, seated upon a pillion (a cushioned second seat, used in early days when 2 persons rode one horse, this was called carrying double), was his wife. John was wounded. His wife, being shot through the hip, fell upon a rock by the path, where she was "tomahawked" before the eyes of her wounded husband. The rock remains; bearing witness to the deed. It is of red-spotted stone, which takes on a deeper hue in damp weather, and a tradition is still extant that those spots were not there until Phebe Heard shed her life blood upon its surface.

Progress was slow, and it is little wonder that Dover was so long overcoming the early depredations, but they passed, and beautiful Dover stands a monument to those brave men, and Heard Garrison House, defying the many sieges, still remain in fairly good order, defying the elements and time to erase the memory of those who found a way toward progress and civilization.

14 May Freeman 1634

Emigrated from England in 1632; made his first home at Cambridge, then called Newtown. Was Deacon in Rev. Thomas Hooker's church there, and accompanied his friend & pastor to Hartford in 1636 (a party of about 100 men, women, children and servants made the long trek through the wilderness, with their cattle and their sheep). In 1639 he was one of the Proprietors of Hartford, Conn., and later (1672) was one of 84 proprietors of Farmington. Attracted by the fertile valley of Farmington, he purchased extensive lands of the Indians.

He and his 1st wife were founding members of the church organized 13 Oct. 1652, Farmington. His house lot in Hartford was on the west side of Front St., near Morgan Street. Tradition says the city was named from Hart's Ford, which ford he discovered & used when the Conn.River was low and could be forded.

In 1645, the town of Farmington was incorporated and Stephen Hart was chosen the first Deacon of the church and is called "one of the seven pillars." He purchased a large tract of land near Avon, which is yet called by the name of Hart's Farm. His house lot contained 15 acres and was on the west side of Main St., opposite the meetinghouse, extending from Mill Lane to the stone store south. In consideration of so large a home lot he was to erect a mill & keep it running.

Deacon Hart was a farmer and large landowner. In his will dated March 16, 1682/3, he gives a farm to his sons, 1/2 to John, 1/4 to Steven and 1/4 to Thomas. Inv. 31 Mar. £340.4.

Richard^1 ø 1632 [Virkus 7]; was in Plymouth in 1633; and is mentioned as being one of the freemen and tax payers of that town, his rate being nine shillings. He was a tailor by trade. In 1639, with Josiah Cooke, he had land granted him at Plymouth. In 1644 he was of the grand inquest and then a resident of Plymouth. In 1645 he went to Nausett, with the other pioneers and in 1647, with Josiah Cooke was sent to the Colony Court in Plymouth as representative, or deputy as they were at that time called. He represented Eastham in several years at the same court according to the Colonial records. In 1651 he was a surveyor for Eastham and in 1666 and 1668 a selectman. He was one of the first overseers of the poor appointed by Eastham in 1658 and one of those this year who agreed to furnish men and equipment for "the troop of horse." He agreed to furnish "one man and a horse for the country's service," upon condition the town furnished the "furniture", so long as he was able. In 1657, he was granted a tract 13 mi. from Rehoboth, and in 1658, with four of his associates in the settlement, he had a grant of land between Bridgewater and Weymouth. It appears he was not satisfied with his situation in Eastham as in Nov. 1672 he was residing in New Pascataway, New Jersey.

ISAAC HIGGINS 1784 - 1860

A search to document the lineage of Rebecca Higgins (1814-1855), who married Isaiah Holbrook Horton (1814-1874), intentions recorded in Wellfleet February 12, 1835, revealed an error in the "Richard Higgins and His Descendants" by Mrs. Katharine Chapen Higgins, Worcester, Mass., 1918. Pages 191-192 of that book indicate incorrectly that Solomon Higgins' son Isaac Higgins, b. April 1, 1789, married Mehitable Gill, b. June 29, 1790, in 1813 and their oldest child, Rebecca, was born November 13, 1814. This does not conform to the dates on the monument in the Congregational and Soldiers Cemetery in Eastham, on which Isaac Higgins' dates are given as July 17, 1784 and November 15, 1860. The birth date of his wife, Mehitable, is shown as June 29, 1790. She died November 20, 1861.

Thus it became necessary to identify the Isaac Higgins born in 1784. The "Richard Higgins and His Descendants" lists an Isaac Higgins with the above birth and death dates as the son of Captain Beriah Higgins born February 3, 1759, died November 18, 1829. Incidentally Captain Beriah's gravestone is next to that of Isaac and Mehitable.

The correct lineage of Rebecca^{7}(Higgins) Horton's father Isaac^{6} is:

Beriah^{5} - b. February 3, Eastham 1759; d. November 18, 1829. Wellfleet (see below)

Beriah^{4} - b. January 15, 1705/16 Eastham; m. I. P. 15 Oct 1755 E. – abigail^{5} Higgins see below

Elisha^{3} - b. circa 1677-79 Eastham; will proved aug. August 7, 1750.; d. 1750 Eastham
m. 30 Sept. 1701 – Jane Collins b. 3 mar. 1684/5 "

Jonathan^{2}- b. July 1637 at Plymouth. (see over)

Richard^{1} and Lydia (Chandler) Higgins. (see over)

The list of Isaac and Mehitable (Gill) Higgins' children in Wellfleet Town Records Vol. I, p. 110, is:

Rebecca - b. November 13, 1814; d. 1855 illegible- b. July 15, 1817; died young.

Isaac - b. August 4, 1820

William - b. August 8, 1825

Beriah - b. September 10, 1832

This note also corrects the Higgins lineage in the "Genealogy of Captain Isaiah Horton, His Wife Rebecca Higgins Horton, etc." compiled by C. Truesdell Fife, 1963.

Mary had 3 ch. by Nathaniel Glover { Nathaniel ?

Mary Glover was only 29 when Thomas began courting her and the Glovers thought it absurd for her to wish to wed a widow with 8 children, and his suit languished at first because of their objections. They finally gave in and before the marriage Mary settled the comfortable estate left her by Nathaniel. The inventory showed her with property valued at 548 pds. She left her 3 children under the guardianship of Glover kin and came to Barnstable.

Thomas & Mary (Glover) Hinckley had 8 children, which made him the father of 16 and her the mother of 11.

Nathaniel, one of Mary's sons by Mr. Glover, grew up and came down to Barnstable and wed Hannah Hinckley, one of Thomas Hinckley's daughters by his 1st wife (Mary Richards).

Mercy Hinckley, the 3rd child of Thomas & Mary (Glover) Hinckley, married Samuel Prince and was mother of the Rev. Thomas Prince, a noted annalist, historian and clergyman, who lived as a youngster with his grandparents.

HOGEBOOM

HOGEBOOM

Will of Pieter Hoogeboom

In the name of God, Amen. On this twentieth day of June one thousand seven hundred and forty-six, I, Peter Hogeboom, of Claverack in the county of Albany in the province of New York, being of sound mind and memory, God be praised for the same, considering the frailty of my body and well knowing that it is appointed that all men must die, thus make and ordain this my last will and testament, that is to say, principally, I first give my soul into the hands of God the Lord who first gave it, and my body I commend to the earth to be buried in a Christian manner.

First. I give to my eldest son's son Peter Hogeboom for his birthright as eldest son the sum of ten pounds York money.

Second. I give to my eldest son's son Pieter Hogeboom and his heirs the neck and the strip (streek) at Canaan and all that lies between that and the old farm for his inheritance, on condition that he pays six years after my death to his sister Rachel Hogeboom and to his brother Cornelis Hogeboom to each per head thirty pounds York money.

Third. I give and bequeath to my son Barth. Hogeboom and to his heirs the old farm at Canaan as the deed shows on the record and also sixty acres lying upon the east side of the Coninghs pat (King's path), and also thirty-five acres on the south next the heirs of the widow Beldins and Sam^{ll}. Robens which lies undivided with Abram Halenbeek, on condition that Bartholomeus Hogeboom and his heirs shall pay six years after my death to Catrynte Hogeboom, wife of Ph: Conyn, and her heirs, the sum of fifty-five pounds York money, and to my daughter Hillatie Hogeboom, the wife of Jochem Radcliff, and her heirs, the sum of fifty-five pounds York money, and to my daughter Arriatic Hogeboom, the wife of Low^{r}. van Alee, deceased, and her heirs, the sum of fifty-five pounds York money, and to my daughter Geertruy Hogeboom, the wife of Willem Van Ness, and her heirs, the sum of fifty-five pounds York money.

Fourth. I give and bequeath to my son Johannis Hogeboom and to his heirs the east or rear end of the farm at Claverack in the manor of Renselaer, as the division fence now stands, right through north and south so far as my right extends and as the deed shows, on condition that Johannis Hogeboom and his heirs pay six years after my death to Catryntie Hogeboom, wife of Ph: Conyn, and her heirs, the sum of thirty-two pounds, ten shillings York money, and to my daughter Hilletie Hogeboom, wife of Jochem Radcliff, and her heirs, thirty-two pounds, ten shillings York money, and to Arriantie Hoogeboom, wife of Lowerens van Alle, deceased, and her heirs, the sum of thirty-two pounds, ten shillings York money, and to Geertruy Hogeboom, wife of Willem van Ness, and her heirs, the sum of thirty-two pounds, ten shillings York money.

Fifth. I give and bequeath to my son Jeremyas Hogeboom and his heirs the foremost or westerly end of the farm with all the buildings thereon, at Claverack, straight through as the division fence now stands north and south so far as my right extends as the deed shows, on condition that Jeremyas Hogeboom pays six years after my death to Catryntie Hogeboom, wife of Ph: Conyn, and her heirs, the sum of forty-two pounds, ten shillings York money, and to my daughter Hilletie Hogeboom, wife of Jochem Radcliff, and her heirs, the sum of forty-two pounds, ten shillings York money, and to my daughter Arriantie Hogeboom, wife of Lou^{w}. van Alle, deceased, and her heirs, the sum of forty-two pounds, ten shillings, York money, and to Geertruy Hogeboom, wife of Will^{m}. van Ness, and her heirs, the sum of forty-two pounds, ten shillings York money.

Sixth. I give and bequeath to my daughter Marytie Hogenboom, wife of Jochem van Valckenburgh, and her heirs, the bush farm where Bart^{h}. Hogeboom now dwells, the old and the new for which I have conveyance and for which I have no conveyance as yet: just as it is with all my right and title, for her inheritance; and if so be that Bartholomeus Hogeboom will not deliver it up peaceably, then he shall be cut off from the farm at Canaan, and if it happen that the farm where Bart^{h}. now dwells shall be lost through any process of law, then shall the ten heirs be holden to make good again to Marytie and her heirs, her inheritance and if Bartholomeus keeps it for his portion, then shall all the heirs be holden if he lose it by process of law also to make good his inheritance to him, but the heirs shall be holden to make good the inheritance for no longer time than 6 years, after my death.

Seventh. I order that Geertruy Hogeboom, wife of Willem van Ness, and her heirs, shall be holden to pay six years after my death the sum of ten pounds York money to all my ten heirs, to each twenty shillings, before she receive the lot of ground.

Eighth. My daughters, Catryntie and Hilletie and Arriantie and Geertruy shall all be holden six years after my death when they shall have received their inheritance as aforenamed to pay the four of them, twenty pounds York money to Marytje Hogeboom, the wife of Jochem Valkenburgh, and her heirs.

Plans For Nickerson Park Annex Draw Some Questions On Parking

Plans for a 90-acre annex to Nickerson State Park were shown to Brewster's Park Advisory Committee last week by Park Planner Karst Hoogeboom. The plans include an access tunnel under Route 6A and parking for 200 cars.

Plans for a 90-acre annex to Nickerson State Park were revealed last week to Brewster's Nickerson State Park Advisory Committee, as well as a handful of concerned residents who abut the property. The park land lies between Crosby Lane and Linnell Landing Road.

The site, acquired by the state over the past few years, will cost about $5 million to develop, it was estimated. The land is north of Route 6A in Brewster, across from the main park. It extends through to Cape Cod Bay and includes about one mile of bay frontage.

The plans for the annex include several nature trails, three large open playing fields, and an activity center. Planned access to the new park will be via a tunnel under Route 6A. Parking for 200 cars will be provided inside the park annex.

The Crosby mansion, on Crosby Lane, is also included in the state-owned property, but there have been no final plans as to what should be done with the building.

"This is just the beginning," said Gilbert Bliss, director of forests and parks for the state's Department of Environmental Management. "We'll be planning for the next two months and hope to finalize in June." Mr Bliss said he hopes to go to the state's Capital Outlay Committee in August. Because no money is available for development at this time, he said, there won't be any big changes in land use this year. He added that it would probably take several years before the property is fully used.

Advisory Committee chairman Marion Wylie said her committee was disappointed in the plans and thinks the state has a long way to go before getting the committee's approval. "We don't like the idea of having 200 parking spaces inside the park. To buy land for conservation and preservation and then use it for parking is wrong."

She said the committee realized the state wanted the land for conservation and recreation, and urged that the parking and access plans be given further consideration. The committee will meet sometime in the next two weeks to discuss the plans as presented by the state.

Brewster Police Chief James Ehrhart also had questions about the plan, particularly about the traffic impact such an addition would have on Route 6A. "I like the idea of a tunnel," he said, "although I'm a little concerned about where you place it regarding the topography of the road." Chief Ehrhart also expressed concern about controlling the traffic at the entrance to the park and asked whether a traffic light would be installed. Mr Bliss said that was not known yet, but it could be incorporated in the redesign of the original park entrance. Because of the size of the project, it will have to undergo a state environmental impact review. That, he added, would provide a more definite answer.

Abutters raised several questions about the addition, many of them centering on the parking situation. One resident thought the 200-car parking facility was "totally inadequate. This will get a lot of people coming down from all over the state," he said. "It's going to turn into a mini-Horseneck Beach."

Mr Bliss said the number of parking spaces was limited through a previous agreement with the town.

The people at the hearing also discussed the possibility of having "people movers," small trams in the annex to transport people to the beach. No final decision on this idea was reached. □

Appeals Board Group To Meet In Eastham

A new coalition linking zoning boards of appeals throughout Cape Cod and the Islands has been formed, and will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Eastham Town Hall.

Al Perperian, chairman of the Eastham Board of Appeals, initiated the group, which will consist of chairmen from other towns' appeals boards.

He said the purpose of the new organization is to discuss mutual problems faced by such boards and create better and more consistent zoning definitions used by the towns.

Anti-Charter Panel Talk Today

A panel discussion by opponents of a town charter for Orleans will be held this afternoon at 2 at Snow Library. Seated on the panel will be all three Orleans selectmen, plus three citizens opposed to the charter being voted on at the annual town election May 6.

In an advertisement in the newspaper Friday the opposition group, called Friends of Orleans, headed by Milton Gray, invited the Orleans Charter Commission to attend. Members of the commission, however, said it had never received an invitation and that in any case the commission had no meeting scheduled until last night. The commission has held from 50 to 60 open meetings over the past two years to answer public questions during the drafting process and since the charter was submitted in November.

Eastham, Wellfleet Talk About Regional Waste Transfer Station

By William Donaldson

As the deadline nears for Outer Cape towns to decide whether to go it alone or regionalize their efforts to ship rubbish off-Cape, Eastham and Wellfleet have been meeting frequently to discuss the creation of a regional transfer station.

Articles have been placed on the warrants for both towns' upcoming annual town meetings to help them make their decisions soon after the meetings are over.

The station would serve both towns when they begin hauling their trash in 1989 to SEMASS, the waste-to-energy plant in Rochester.

While costs still are not definite, estimates are that separate facilities could cost each town about $600,000.

If they regionalize, the cost could be significantly lower, but coming to terms and drafting a contract agreement undoubtedly would be complicated.

Eastham, ahead of most Outer Cape towns in its planning, told Wellfleet officials at a recent meeting that "the time for talking is over."

Donald Sander, chairman of the Eastham Solid Waste Committee, told his Wellfleet counterparts that "by the end of spring town meetings you should know whether you want to participate or not."

Eastham voters will make their decision May 4. Mr Sander has initiated an article on the Annual Town Meeting warrant asking voters to authorize selectmen to negotiate a joint contract with Provincetown, Truro, and Wellfleet, or any combination thereof, to build a regional station—on Eastham soil, if necessary. "No matter what we do, the trash from those three towns will go through Eastham," he said. Building a regional station in Eastham might make more sense because back-hauling trash from Eastham to Wellfleet, for example, would only cost more money, he said.

Mr Sander acted on his own in asking the selectmen to place the article on the warrant. "I'm not using committee time to discuss costs of regionalism until we have some decision from the voters. What we are desperately looking for is input from the public. Regionalism is something people like to talk philosophically about." But when it comes time for action "provincialism prevails," he said. The article will resolve the issue once and for all for Eastham voters, he said.

Another article seeks $50,000 for engineering fees to design a site and plans for the station. The station would probably be placed in the town's landfill area.

If the two articles pass, Wellfleet will have to make its decision before Eastham's planning and engineering process starts in June, because changing engineering plans mid-stream to accommodate Wellfleet (or any other town) would be costly, Mr Sander said.

At the meeting, Wellfleet Solid Waste Task Force members asked about Eastham's requirements for locating a regional station there.

"If we did have the thing in Eastham, we'd want it as attractive to Eastham as possible," Selectman Ralph Earle said.

Wellfleet would not be allowed to send residents in individual cars delivering trash, but would instead have to consolidate transportation of its trash into trucks, which then would deliver the trash to Eastham. The measure would minimize traffic along Brackett and Orchard roads—the route trucks would probably use to bring their trash to Eastham's landfill area.

In addition, the contract would probably involve provisions for recycling in the future, Mr Earle said. "One of the things we're looking for in the future is household education. Five years down the road we are going to have to ask people to separate their bottles, their cans, their paper. The time is coming when with the amount of trash we're generating in this country, we're going to have to be more selective."

The recycling provision would mean that Wellfleet might have to build a "mini-transfer station" of sorts to collect and separate trash before it comes to Eastham.

Other logistical considerations include weighing trash from the two towns to determine each town's share of the hauling costs and fees charged by SEMASS for the trash it receives.

While the towns have rough estimates for developing sites and constructing facilities, these and other costs may vary from town to town, depending on the size of the station and the kind of equipment which is needed.

"At this point we don't know what the costs are going to be, so it's hard to make a rational decision," said Benjamin Gitlow, member of the Wellfleet Solid Waste Task Force.

Brewster Route 6 interchange blueprint revived

By JOHN LEANING
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER — At least one state agency is dusting off decade-old plans for a proposed Route 6 interchange leading to Nickerson State Park from Freemans Way to reduce rising traffic pressures on Route 6A.

Officials with the Department of Environmental Management, which controls use of the state's 90-acre "window" on Cape Cod Bay, as well as the popular state park on the other side of Route 6A in Brewster, are evaluating traffic concerns as they review proposals to develop portions of the 90-acre parcel for public use.

The only access to those properties now is from Route 6A, Brewster's "Main Street." Included in the 90-acre parcel on Cape Cod Bay is the historic Crosby Mansion.

A Hyannis-based group, First Light, recently submitted to the state a detailed proposal for the use of the mansion, including a shipwreck museum and library, as well as facilities, including housing and administrative offices, for performing artists and technicians.

First Light is looking elsewhere on the Cape for facilities where performances would be presented.

In a recent interview, Karst Hoogeboom, the Department of Environmental Management's chief planner, said he had not had a chance to review First Light's proposal. He said two proposals have been submitted for the mansion; the other is from the Architectural Conservation Trust.

Hoogeboom said traffic was one of the concerns his department would look at closely as it evaluates uses for the state-owned land on Cape Cod Bay. But increased traffic from the development of the Cape Cod Bay property is not the only reason for the revival of the proposal for a Route 6 interchange.

According to Hoogeboom, reconsideration of a proposal for an interchange serving Nickerson State Park is timely because of the planned improvements for the Mid-Cape Highway. Now would be the time to incorporate the new interchange if it is deemed needed.

The so-called "double-barreling" of Route 6 from Exit 9 in Dennis to the Orleans-Eastham rotary is in the planning process.

Because of the high number of fatal accidents in recent years on the two-lane roadway, it has earned the title "Suicide Alley" from local drivers.

Hoogeboom said he will be one of several state officials in attendence this week in Eastham for a public "scoping" session on the Route 6 project. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. Wednesdayin Eastham Town Hall.

The session will give public officials and private citizens the opportunity to review proposals for improving Route 6, and to make suggestions on environmental or other matters. Maps of the proposed highway project will also be available.

It is estimated that the Route 6 project may take a minimum of 10 years and cost at least $100 million.

Brewster Police Chief James Ehrhart said if the proposed interchange off Freemans Way ever becomes reality it would take a lot of the pressure off Route 6A.

The narrow, winding, two-lane highway is already overburdened with traffic, and state officials have warned of a virtual "gridlock" situation later this summer because of large condominium and conference center developments nearing completion.

Hoogeboom also said that he was in close communication with Steven Davis, assistant secretary of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, which is also concerned about mounting traffic problems on Route 6A from increasing development.

Earlier this spring, the Nickerson State Park Advisory Committee reviewed preliminary plans for the 90 acres of prime property acquired over the past several years by the state. There were concerns voiced at that time regarding increased traffic.

Hoogeboom said that before any decisions are made, the advisory panel will be consulted.

Aboard The Minerva

A Stop In Honolulu, Then On To New Zealand

Captain and Mrs Penniman

Captain Edward Penniman was the clipper ship owner who built, as his residence, the Penniman House, now restored in Eastham by the Cape Cod National Seashore.

He took his wife as passenger, and she kept a journal of the voyage, excerpts from which are here recorded:

Remarks made on board Bark Minerva
during a whale voyage to the Arctic Ocean.

November 13th, 1865

Tuesday morning early the pilot boat came alongside. Signalized for the steamer to take us in. Anchored ship at 9 o'clock. Several men came aboard to welcome us into Honolulu. Edward went ashore after letters and to look up a boarding place. Sent aboard lots of nice grapes or oranges, etc. etc. Edward returned aboard about noon with a large package of papers and letters, 23 belonged to E and myself. He engaged room at Mrs Fuller's house. We are to take our meals opposite at the Aldrich House. At 3 o'clock are to have a carriage at the wharf to pick us up. After dinner, dressed myself and Genia, left the ship about 3 o'clock. Took a carriage and Edward drove up to our house. Was greeted by Mrs Captain Dexter, who was preparing to sail for home. They left in a few moments after we arrived. Captain F., Mrs. Fisher soon after came to occupy Mrs Dexter's rooms. Captain Fordham also rooms in the same house. Our room fronts the street where we have full view of all that passes by. We are indebted to Captain Ashley for our room, as he was occupying it when we came. But his generosity would not permit him to keep it. Toward evening the Reverend Mr and Mrs Damond, the missionary, called on us. Also several captains.

November 14th

In the morning wrote a few lines to mother. Posted the letter, mail left today for the states. Mrs Luddington called. In the evening called on Mrs Luddington where we met Captain and Mrs Jermeil. Mrs J. just out from home. Had a very pleasant call.

November 15h

Mrs Gray, Mrs Green favored me with a call. Reverend Mr Damond gave me a very polite invitation to go to ride with him. I was obliged to refuse.

November 16th

Went shopping. Bought G.F. some shoes, etc.

Novmeber 17th

Captain and Mrs Raynor came to occupy Mrs Fisher's vacant rooms. She has two children, one two weeks old, born at sea. They are five months from home. Afternoon Edward engaged a carriage and we went to ride up the valley. It is a very pretty place. Banana trees with its fruits hanging, ready for market and many other tropical trees loaded with fruit. The valley consists of many summer residences which people from the city occupy during the summer months. The natives have their dwellings mostly up there.

November 18th

Edward attended church. In the evening we went out upon the veranda to hear the Presbyterian minister deliver his discourse quite distinctly as his church was but a few rods from our room. Received a call from the Reverend Mr McBride, the American Minister of Honolulu.

November 19th

Bought some white linen for Genia a suit of clothes. Cut them. Am very busy in making them up.

November 20th

Been very busy in sewing. Evening Mr Foster called. Also Captain Hawes, Alman Bowes and several other.

November 23rd

Went to return some calls. Edward quite indisposed. Felt quite anxious about him.

November 25th

Sunday. Edward attended church.

November 26th

Been shopping. Bought me an organdy muslin dress. Commenced to make it.

November 27th

Captain and Mrs Rainor sailed today. Received a

:hristenings, the visits with friends, the exchange of ıews from the islands....

"Father was lucky enough to find an old house with ight acres of land for $60, which he bought. We lived here until I was eight years old. In our family there ere nine children before we left East Harwich....

"In East Harwich my mother used to raise egetables, and she had a child every year-and-a-half. ince she liked working in the fields but never liked ousework, often she would work with a baby tied to er back very much the way Indian women tied their apooses to their backs when they worked or went ıywhere. She raised corn, beans, turnips, squash, eas, potatoes and, in the fall, since she had a number f apple trees, we used to pack the apples in barrels ıd put them in the cellar to use during the winter. She ısed to salt a pig or two that were always killed in the all, and make linguica."

Mrs Lopes describes the making of mainstays of Cape Verdean diet, chorico, cuscuz, bufongo, manchupo (which is also called cachupo) and jagacido, which was her favorite. "It has been a very popular dish in all Cape Verdean homes, even of the second and third generation Cape Verdeans in this country. They call it 'jag' for short." Her mother's jagacido contains lima beans, onions, rice, pork or lard, and two layers of cornmeal, one fine and one coarse.

For breakfast her mother often steamed fine cornmeal in a flowerpot which was placed on top of a teakettle whose spout was plugged so that steam rose only through the hole in the bottom of the pot, to make cuscuz. When steam began coming through the cloth covering the pot, the cuscuz was ready. It was firm enough to hold together when cut, but was eaten as a cereal with milk and sometimes sweetening. "It soaked up milk like a sponge," she says. "My mother never used to add sugar or salt.... I liked my Cuscuz the way she made it—a frugal cuscuz."

Pork was their most common meat. Her mother cured pork in garlic, salt and vinegar, and kept cured hams in the cellar.

"Mother learned quite early...how to make the different American pastries like apple pie, blueberry pie and squash pie. One of her American neighbors, Mrs Eldridge, who only lived about a quarter of a mile away, taught her how to make pies, gingerbread, and how to bake beans the American way with molasses and pork....

"The other typical Cape Verdean foods that we had were generally imported from the Cape Verde Islands. Whenever a ship came in, my mother always got her share of edibles sent to her by her mother." These included pira, the root of the tapioca plant; a very hard kind of bean called fija pedra, "stone bean"; and camoca, a sweet combination of powdered roast corn and sugar.

Her mother's bread was like bread she had made in the islands where she had worked for a baker. "All our bread was made in the Portuguese style. The loaves were cooked on a tin that did not interfere with their shape." Sometimes she baked bufongo, an unleavened cornbread, in the shape of a man or a cow, to please the children. "Cornmeal used to be on our table in some form every day of the week," Mrs Lopes says, "just as white bread used to be on the tables of most Americans at every meal."

> "...around the month of April, we'd go into the woods to pick mayflowers and try to sell them....This was something in which the men very seldom indulged...."

Mrs Lopes' father gave up whaling when he married, and while the family lived in East Harwich he worked in cranberry bogs on the Cape and elsewhere. He picked strawberries and blueberries in season and cut wood or ice in winter. The going rate was a dollar a day.

Cape Verdean families often worked together in cranberry bogs, moving from town-to-town as the

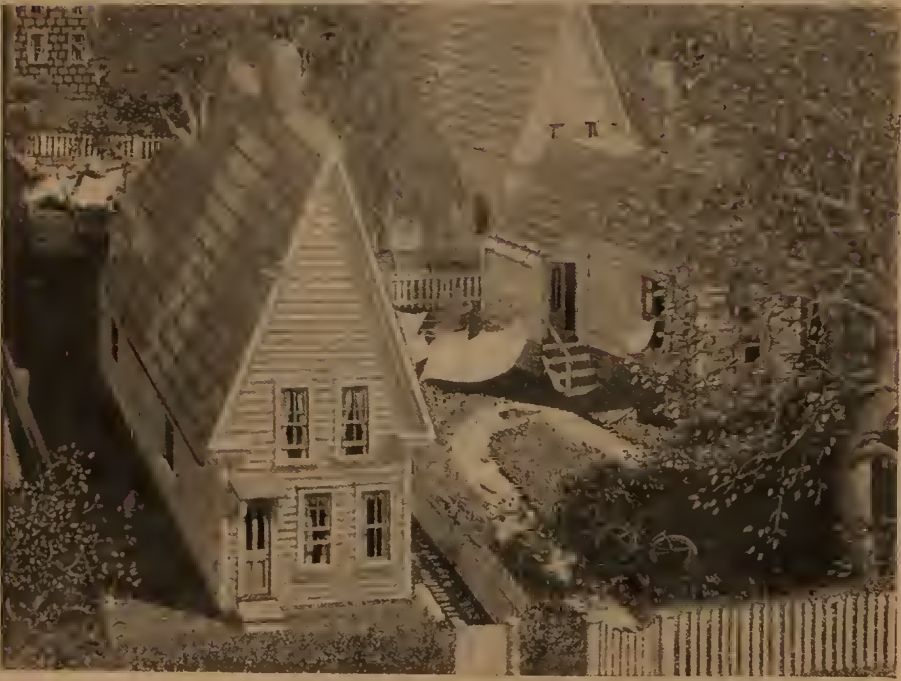
ART

By Joan Wheeler



Among the works of Provincetown artist Peter Coes, which will be featured beginning July 28 along with the work of artist Gail Browne at the Blue Heron Gallery, in Wellfleet, is "Our Neighborhood."

Artist Jack Grasso has said he feels that representational watercolor painters are the staple in the art world, and Mr Grasso is an artist who practices what he preaches. The proof will be hanging on the walls of the Orleans Art Gallery beginning Saturday, July 28.

To the observer, Mr Grasso may be being a bit too hard on himself by reducing his art to the lowest common denominator. The watercolors of Jack Grasso are hardly garden variety. His style is representational, yes, but his is art to which both most experienced art aficionado and the man in the street can relate.

Those who love New England will find much pleasure in this exhibit. The viewer may find scenes here that he has passed by often and never really noticed until he sees them through the eyes of Jack Grasso.

The Orleans Art Gallery is at Main Street and Rock Harbor Road in Orleans. The Grasso exhibit is to be its one "big" gallery show this season. It shouldn't be missed.

The Left Bank Gallery on Commercial Street in Wellfleet is large. This fact alone makes it a pleasure to visit. The paintings displayed on its walls and the pottery on the shelves make it even more enjoyable.

The Left Bank currently is featuring the work of three watercolorists, all skilled, all different. They are Albert Drogin, Jean Morrow and Karol Wyckoff, and each creates a different mood. The group show continues through August 4.

An artist with a camera is the best way to describe photographer Jim Schlessinger. He has chosen the shoreline of Cape Cod as his subject and the beautiful results are now being featured at The Artful Hand Gallery at Main Street Square, Orleans. The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10 am to 5:30 pm and Sundays from noon to 5 pm.

Two Provincetown artists will have a show at the Blue Heron Gallery for a week beginning Saturday, July 28. The two young diverse talents are Peter Coes and Gail Browne.

Miss Browne's watercolors are reflections of the land and seascapes with which she is familiar on the outer Cape. She knows her subjects well and transfers her images and impressions to paper.

Mr Coes' work is done with pigmented ink. His paintings are not to be viewed in haste. When you think you have seen it all, go back and look again. Mr Coes, by the way, designed the 1984 poster for the Blue Heron Gallery.

The gallery is on Bank Street in Wellfleet and is open from 9 to 6 every day.

call from Mr Foster. He invited me to come to his residence to spend the day next Thursday.

November 28th

My birthday. Twenty-eight years. Also the Hawaiian's government independence was declared this day. I was presented from my husband a nice gold pin and a new dress. Al Jones presented me with a very nice sandalwood fan. Captain and Mrs Jones and children are now occupying Mrs Rainor's vacant rooms.

November 29th

On my return after breakfast found Mrs Junet awaiting with her carriage to take me up to Mr Foster's. Dressed Genia and myself and at 9 o'clock was on our way. The forenoon passed very pleasantly and the afternoon Edward and Mr Foster came. We dined at six. Had turkey, plum pudding, peas, beans, pies, cakes and everything nice. Was entertained in the evening by music from the piano. Had a beautiful moonlight ride home.

November 30th

Mrs Jones and myself went to ride.

December 1st

Edward and Captain J. and wife and myself visited the Catholic Church observatory, which gave us a good view of Honolulu. Also of the convent which comprised of a large lot of dwellings. Several nuns were visible.

December 2nd

I attended the Catholic Church. Was very much entertained, it being my first visit to see a church. Twenty of the sisters were out dressed in white. They wore white crepe veils. Edward managed to get a peak at one under her veil. He was very much smitten. Intended to have gone to the Church of England but had callers.

December 3rd

Morning went shopping. Mrs Jones and self called on Mrs Luddington. Was treated to some nice cake and port wine. Returned home. Dressed for lunch. Afternoon Edward and Captain Jones got horses and accompanied Mrs J. and Reverend Mr and Mrs Damond with myself to the noted place called the Devil's Punchbowl. It is a high mountain, and in order to ascend it it is necessary to ride horseback. Upon reaching its top, we have a full view of the city with all its valley residences and taru patches. Also an splendid view of the harbor and its shipping. Why this mountain is called Punchbowl is because its top comprises a number of rods of land and its surface is concave like a bowl. On the top are several çannons to defend the city in case of necessity. We were visited by a shower of rain which lasted a few moments, and a beautiful rainbow made its appearance. The place where we ascended was almost perpendicular. So much so that we were obliged to lead our horses down and walk ourselves. Arrived home just at dark. Went over and dined and received callers in the evening. Also called on Reverend Damond.

Captain Edward Penniman

December 5th

Arose early. Went to breakfast. Went shopping to get some articles for my use at sew. Made several calls. Lunched at 12 o'clock, bid our friends farewell and set sail for New Zealand. Arrived on board of the Minerva about 2 o'clock, having been gone three weeks. Have a very fair wind and we are fast passing Diamond Head with its tall, waving coconut trees just in sight. Felt a little seasick.

December 6th

Nice, fair wind and we are bounding merrily in our journey. Felt as though Neptune was going to visit me. Edward and Genia seasick.

December 10th

We have got quite naturalized to our sea home again. We have plenty of oranges and other kinds of fruit.

December 13th

Fine warm weather. Fourteen months out today.

December 14th

Edward and myself been washing. Had a very large number of pieces. Edward grew quite indignant before we finished, for he thought I had the most clothes.

December 15th

Morning felt very lame. After taking exercise felt better. Commenced to iron. Did not get through until eight bells. So ends this day.

December 20

Nice, fair wind. Cut and make Genia some socks.

December 23rd

Cut my chambray dress.

December 24th

Off Navigator Island Edward went ashore, purchased some bananas, (something apples) and breadfruit. Several canoes visited our ship. The natives wished to see the Whimena (wife). Their dress consisted of a small piece of cloth wrapped around their waist. They were highly tatooed. A white man was living ashore, a native of Boston. He was about marrying his sixth wife.

December 25h

Christmas Day. Genia hung up his stocking. Santa Claus visited it and left a number of presents. Genia felt very anxious to know if they hauled back the mainyard and who took the boats warp for Santa to get aboard.

December 28th

Been washing. Feel tired. Wanting iron to mend afternoon after I'd done chores.

December 29th

Cool, but head winds. Spent the day in sewing, reading and writing. All well. Extracted two of Genia's under teeth.

January 3rd, 1866

Commenced to embroider a yoke.

5th

Covered a quilt.

7th

Sunday. Spent it in writing, reading and eating. Edward rather fractious. Genia upon deck.

9th

Again the Island of Chatham meets our view with its lofty pyramid towering high above the sea. Ten months ago we bid this island adieu. Since then, many thousands of miles have separated us and many a storm have we endured. But at last are brought safely back again.

January 12th

Strong southwest wind. Went into Pitts Island for a harbor. Edward, Eugene and myself went ashore to Mr Hunt's, visiting. Found Mr Hunt and Missy away in New Zealand. Went and picked strawberries. Called upon Grandmother Hunt. Took tea with them. Spent the night ashore.

January 13th

Edward arose at 4 o'clock. Went down and picked a half peck of strawberries before breakfast. I rose about 7:00, dressed Genia and myself, went down, ate breakfast. Soon after the boat came to take us back to the ship. I was presented with a shoulder of ham, some eggs, lettuce and several other things. Arrived aboard about 11 o'clock. In the afternoon preserved my strawberries for Edward to eat in the Arctic Ocean.

Jamuary 14th

Feel quite indisposed. Ed gone gaming aboard Captain Lucas' ship from Hobart Town.

January 20th

For the last few days felt quite sick.

21st

Sunday. A strong breeze. Feel rather better.

January 29th

This morning the ship hove up anchor at Tobung. Made sail for that part of the island where we were to get a supply of wood. About 12 o'clock I went ashore. It being rough about landing at the usual place, I was obliged to land at the boat harbor where I had a couple of miles to walk. Edward remained all night and took his departure early the next morning.

January 30th

Arose. Bid Edward goodbye and watched the window bench disappear from my sight.

February 24th

Before I arose, the cry of "Sail Ho!" greeted my ears. On looking out I beheld our good ship Minerva in sight. About half past seven Edward came ashore bringing news of three of his men were drowned while in fishing at Port Hunt. Also the death of Captain Lucas.

25th

Left this island to cruise of Pyramid a few days. I was presented with paroquet, but it was so offended that it will not speak a word.

Aboard The Minerva

Black Fish, Sweet Potatoes Esquimeux And Seasickness

Captain Edward Penniman was the clipper ship owner who built, as his residence, the Penniman House, now restored in Eastham by the Cape Cod National Seashore.

He took his wife as passenger, and she kept a journal of the voyage, excerpts from which are here recorded:

Remarks made on board Bark Minerva
during a whale voyage to the Arctic Ocean.

Sailed from New Bedford, Wednesday, October 12, 1864. Taking a pilot boat at the wharf, we proceeded down where the ship lay, she being a few miles from the city. We arrived on board about noon. It being very moderate, I spent the remainder of the day in unpacking and making arrangements for the sea voyage. About 7 o'clock the pilot left us. It immediately commenced to blow quite severe and continued so for one week. Since that time have had very pleasant weather. After two days of sea sickness I found myself quite indisposed for the next ten days, not being able to leave my stateroom. But under the careful attention of Dr. Penniman I am happy to say that my health is nearly restored to its former state.

A few evenings after we sailed, I was suddenly startled by a most tremendous crash upon deck. When directly Edward made his appearance saying, "Was she frightened?", the tool chest, not being properly secured, tipped over and away went its contents over deck. Neglecting to close the window during a gale of wind, I was surprised one day in looking upon my stateroom floor to see articles floating in every direction. Genia was seasick but one day. Ever since that he has enjoyed himself nicely, he being a great favorite with the officers I seldom saw him, except after a heavy sea he would run down and say, "See how wet I am, mama."

November 15th

This afternoon went on shore, saw the natives. They were black Portigo. I was invited into their houses and treated to some nice wine and oranges and other kinds of fruit. I will describe their dwellings. They were stoned up with thatched roof, no floor. The ladies wore no shoes. A few of the men understood English. It was a very mountainous region. Edward and myself took a short survey of the country, but being obliged to clamber up the mountains, we found it a very difficult task. Although there was a narrow passage stoned up which conveyed the people to their residences, most of them lived upon the mountains.

Edward purchased about 1000 oranges, different kinds of melons, bananas and several other kinds of fruit. I spent a very pleasant day. Our ship lay some distance of the shores, so we were obliged to go about two miles in the boat. It being rather windy I received quite a sprinkling in coming back. On returning we found another ship nearby, the Java, Captain Smith of New Bedford, two months out. Edward aboard of her, took tea and returned with a quantity of sweet potatoes. They were very nice. So ends this day.

November 6th

This morning very squally with rain. About noon Edward went ashore again, shipped five men and returned on board just dark. Left the island. Being calm all night we proceeded but a few miles. Sent letters home for the first time.

November 7th

Extremely hot and calm. Spent the day upon deck. Had boiled meat and sweet potatoes, creamed corn, for dinner.

November 8th

Very warm and calm. Spent a part of my time in reading and writing. Afternoon went upon deck to see the new men receive their clothes from the chest.

November 9th

Hot and sultry. Just dark. The officers load the boats to exercise the men in rowing. Evening took melons upon deck and treated the men.

November 10th

We are now sailing in the trade winds. Wind east northeast. Very warm, but a good breeze.

Novmeber 11th

Beautiful day and a nice wind. Rather warm.

November 12th

Today we are in what they call the doldrums. It is very changeable weather. One hour is nice, pretty weather; the next it is a thunder storm and very squally. Hope to get through of them in course of a week.

November 12th

This morning fine weather. Saw black fish. Lowered the boats. The starboard boat took a large one. Afternoon very squally with thunder.

November 13th

Commenced to draw out the black fish, but none being in sight the boats went out, caught one small fish by the bow boat. About noon it rained and very squally.

November 14th

This day commenced dark and rainy. Can just discern two ships at a distance.

November 15th

Very fine day. Had plum pudding and five bananas for dinner. Engaged in knitting and reading.

November 16th

Daylight it commenced to rain in torrents, but about 9 o'clock came out clear and sunshine. Ordered my water to be heat to do my washing with. Washed today for the first time. Got through about noon. Had but little skin left on my fingers. Pumping out ship. Fine weather again.

November 17th

. Morning rainy and squally. Afternoon very pleasant. Ironed, read and knit a little.

November 20th

A fine Sabbath day. Strong wind. I feel kind of seasick. Spent the day in reading and writing.

November 24th

Thanksgiving Day. Should like to be at home very much to take dinner with them. We dined upon boiled ham, boiled meat, turnip, potatoes, pudding, warm bread, cheese, pear preserves. Felt a little bit homesick this day.

November 28th

My birthday. Twenty-seven years old. Did not receive any present. I celebrated it by washing.

December 1st

Today commenced my school. Have one scholar, Genia B. Penniman, age 4 years and 2 months old. Receive for my labor $100 per year with board and clothing included to be paid at the end of the voyage. It is the first day of summer with us. With you, the first day of winter.

December 7th

Fine, nice cool day. Saw whales for the first time. Lowered the boats, but without success.

December 8th

Nice weather. Caught one black fish.

December 9th

Caught six black fish.

December 12th

Monday fine weather. Genia, getting out of the boat which was hung upon the cranes, lost his foothold and came very near of going overboard, but he clung to the side of the boat and called for his father who did not

Dr. Penniman came to visit his patient. The third mate is quite sick.

December 25th

Christmas Day. Clear and cool. Eugene was visited by Santa Claus, who presented him with several tokens of affection.

1865—January 1st

Sunday, the first day of the new year. Morning commenced with a very heavy tempest and rain poured in torrents. Spent the day in reading.

January 2nd

Nice northerly winds. Smooth and pleasant weather. We have been sailing in the Indian Ocean one week. The officers often remark to me that the Minerva is very delicate about introducing me to the Indian Ocean. But I don't know about that. She rolled some last week, so that I was obliged to keep myself in very close quarters.

January 11th

Nice fair wind. Spent the day in playing checkers and reading.

February 2nd

We are fast approaching the Chatham Islands where I intend to remain a few days. Nice, fine weather. Genia on deck. Edward reading.

February 11th, Saturday

About noon saw Pitts Island, one of the Chatham Islands. All prepared to go on shore. Stepped on dry land about 5 P.M. after being out four months. Edward remained with us until after tea and then took his departure for Wytenooki to recruit chimp leaving Genia and myself to visit a friend of his until his return. This island is about 25 miles in circumferance, thickly wooded, with a beautiful soil, but three families lived upon it. I will describe the house where I visited. It was situated upon rising ground commanding a full view of the sea. A beautiful flower garden in front laid out with nice walks and hedging. Splendid prairie roses and running honeysuckles clambering up its roof. Large number of fuscia trees in full bloom interspersed with several other kinds of ornamental trees giving the cottage a very handsome appearance. All kinds of vegetables were cultivated with an immense large strawberry bed, the berries being just ripe. Oh, the strawberries and cream! How delicious after being aboard of the ship so long. Currents and cherries in abundance. It was the last of the summer with them. Mr Hunt, daughters and myself took long strolls through the woods visiting huge rocks and admiring the beauties of nature. On the morning of the 23rd of February the Minerva appeared in sight. About noon Edward arrived on shore to remain until the next day. The evening was spent with singing and dancing. I enjoyed my visit very much. Genia was presented with a pistol and a pig and four hens. The pig and hens are doing nicely. The pistol is often in exercise so much that a box of caps have disappeared.

February 24th

We set sail for the Arctic Ocean. Arriving on board old Neptune favored me with a visit so I was obliged to keep to my stateroom the remainder of the day.

March 3rd

For the past two days have experienced a heavy gale which resulted in the loss of a boat and two davits. Also the flying leap of our swing bed. The Minerva stood it well and gave me many a roll across the cabin.

March 19th—Sunday

Fine weather. Raised whales—took one small one by the waist boat. Made 25 barrels.

March 21st—Tuesday

Fine, calm day. Lowered the boats for whales. Directed me after breakfast. Did not return until one o'clock. I spent the day in washing and taking care of the ship. For a crew I had four Portuguese, one Irish, one German. We managed very well. Tacked ship once. Upset my washtub and rolled around some, but finally came right side up.

April 24th—Monday

Thick snow storm. Past Copper Island which was covered with snow and ice. It was uninhabited. Bearing sea.

April 26th

Cold and snowing. Struck the ice last night, frightening me considerable but hove the ship to until daylight.

June 21st

Cape Behring very near. Boats in down but without success. Last night we were somewhat surprised by the arrival of some of the Esquimeux. They came on board to trade of the whale bone, walrus tusks and furs. They wished to exchange them for rum, but we, not having the desired-for article, did not purchase of them. It was about midnight when they arrived. I rose and went upon deck to greet them. Several of them were in their boats taking a luncheon. They were partaking of some raw walrus and other similar dainties which they had taking in coming to our ship. They were clad in fur and looked very neat.

June 25th

Off Plevor Bay. Spoke French ship Gustave. Reporting the pirate Shenendoah off Cape Thadeus having burnt several ships. Saw heavy smoke. Supposed it to be ships burning.

June 26th

In company with the ship Governor Troup went south to avoid the pirate.

July 15th

Ship near Oumimak Island. About noon was very much startled by our ship's twice striking bottom on a reef but were around and got off without any damaged. About 4 o'clock felt quite a severe shock of an earthquake.

September 11th

Cool, nice air. Took two small whales. Eighty barrels and 80 barrels. Genia birthday. Five years old. A very good celebration.

September 22nd

Took a large boathead, 100 barrels.

October 8th

Gained with ship CH. Captain Homan and Captain Feld. A consultation concerning boatheads. Decided to point our ships north again. At noon found ourselves near Harold Island, latitude 72 N. It created quite a sensation on board to think we were so far north. It had been very sick weather so for several days had not got any observation. Supposed we were down in lat. 65. It must have been a very strong current which sat north rapidly. However, we caught a small whale in rather—Harold Island. Codfish. Made 20 barrels.

October 9th

A large body of whale. Lowered the boats. Captured one which made 50 barrels.

October 13th

Passing out of the straits. The Diomedes are in sight. Sunday spent the day in reading.

October 18th

One of the boat steers died with consumption. Committed his body to the deep.

October 20th

I'm quite unwell. We near Fox Islands.

October 21st

First at night passed through Fox Islands into the mild Pacific.

October 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st; November 1, 2, 3rd

Sick.

November 4th

Calm. Been so for several days. Recovering slowly. Hope to get well by the time we reach Honolulu.

November 6th

Met with a mishap. Slipped down the stairs. Met with quite an accident. Calms.

November 7th

Started cleaning the cabins preparing for reaching port. Getting short of fresh water. Calms.

November 9th

Getting discouraged of ever having wind to reach port.

Novmeber 11th

Nice free wind. Feel very tired. Been pressing out my clothes for packing.

Novmeber 12th

Honolulu in sight. Cannot get into the harbor tonight. Been packing my trunks.

(To be continued.)

their range climbs heading north as tides move gradually into what becomes ultimately the broad Gulf of Maine. A tidal range of six feet at Nauset Beach becomes seven feet off Wellfleet and nine feet by the time it is at Race Point in Provincetown.

Once the Cape's tip is cleared, however, the range doesn't increase particularly, because Cape Cod Bay is large relative to the opening between Provincetown and the mainland. Precisely the opposite is true in Canada's renowned Bay of Fundy where the typical Gulf of Maine range of 10 feet (already three times the open ocean mean) is much affected by a tapering bay and funneled to the staggering height of 30-50 feet above low water.

Tides on the Cape's south shore are a good deal more complex, although well understood through research done by the late Woods Hole scientist, Dr. Alfred Redfield.

Just south of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard are relatively unobstructed waters, so even though the Vineyard's western point is well east of all Cape Cod, the tide arrives 3.5 hours earlier there than it does on Cape Cod's outer beaches. It enters the Sound along a channel between Martha's Vineyard and Woods Hole, and then later, slowed by its approach over Georges Bank, moves eastward into the Sound via a gap between Monomoy Point and Nantucket.

The interaction of these opposing facets of the same tide greatly influences the time of high water and generally reduces the tidal range to a Cape Cod minimum of about 1.5 feet in Falmouth.

Although boaters on the south shore can basically ignore tidal charts, tricky and shifting tidal currents require caution. Indeed, tidal currents in New England are nowhere stronger than in the Cape Cod Canal and the "holes" between the islands south of Woods Hole.

In "The Ever-Changing Sea," a text on oceanography, authors David Ericson and Goesta Wollin recall a becalmed night off Martha's Vineyard. "In the distance we heard a rushing, churning sound, like that of the bow wave of a small steamer, but whatever it was it showed no light; we could see nothing on the dark water.

"Then as the rushing sound rapidly became louder we realized that we were being hurried by the tidal current directly toward the West Chop buoy; what had sounded like a bow wave was the current churning against the buoy. With no wind we were helpless to avoid a possible collision. As it happened, Neptune was kind; we passed the buoy almost hidden in foam with a few feet to spare.

"In the Hole, the narrow passage south of Woods Hole that connects Buzzards Bay with Vineyard Sound, the tidal current at its peak is strong enough to drag the marking buoys completely under, leaving no other sign of their presence than a wake of snarling, violently boiling foam."

THOMAS HOOKER

Chap.2 p. 25 Thomas Hooker, arriving in 1633, en route to Cambridge, had been preceded in 1632 by a group from his former St. Mary's congregation in Essex. A non-conforming minister seldom came alone, and wherever he settled, a few of his former congregation were likely to be the nucleus of the new society.

Chap.5 p. 71 If Thomas Hooker, during his eight-week voyage in the Griffin, had caught a prophetic glimpse of himself on the Old Bay Path three years hence, heading a cavalcade of men, women, and children, their servants, their cattle, their sheep, through the wilderness, he might for all his bold courage have called himself a fool indeed. It was one thing, under the passion of the moment, to declare in his farewell sermon to his Chelmsford congregation that > "England has seen her best dayes, and now evill days are befalling us,....Our God is going, and do you sit still on your beds? ....God is packing up his Gospel, because no body will buy his wares, nor come to his price";

even to go so far as to say, "the poor native Turks and Infidels shall have a cooler summer parlour in hell"[2] than England, once so exalted in God's sight. It took courage of a quite different stamp to break his own personal career in half, relinquish the fame which was beginning to be spoken beyond St. Mary's borders, and, perhaps hardest of all for him, to forego the chance to lead in English church reform which at that moment seemed to be his. Nevertheless he left it all behind him, gambled with the unknown and began over. He was forty-seven years old, and as men thought of their life span in those days he was already old. Why not, after all, he might have asked, the semi-retirement of Little Baddow, with its quiet business of school-keeping as a livelihood? If Laud would not let him preach as he must, there were other ways of being heard. But he had turned the page, and however unwillingly he had made his decision, there was conviction as well as expediency back of it. There was also vision.

Whatever made his two-year sojourn in New Towne a restless time (and that still remains something of a mystery) Massachusetts was not p.72 his answer. He was preaching to the Mt. Wollaston congregation, "a joyful and affectionate people", numbering some of his former English congregation, and they were well satisfied with his ministry. He was living in a comfortable house within the confines of what is now Harvard Yard. He ~~he~~ had daily intercourse with men who spoke his own language. Magistrates consulted him. His chance of being one of the "Big Men" of the colony was bright. The contrast between his two flights from London and his escape to America in disguise, when placed beside his New Towne honors, is dramatic. Why did he wish to leave this hopeful new life behind? Was it that the lure of "a long, fresh, rich river" gave concreteness to a vision not to be satisfied in Massachusetts, or was it (as is more probable) that life in the orbit of John Cotton was less free than his nature and his powers demanded? Did one walk a chalk line even here? As to all this, he kept his own counsel, but petitioned to remove with a substantial number of his congregation. The General Court said No. He repeated his plea and then despite the repeated denial, the resulting schism in the Court and the noisy debate -- despite even the "melting sermon" of John Cotton and the apparent peace it brought -- he and his people persisted in their plea until it was finally granted. Then when spring broke in 1636, they sold their houses and were off toward the deeper wilderness.

Their fortnight in the woods reads like a chapter out of Pilgrim's Progress, except that they were not fleeing from the wrath to come. Theirs was a pilgrimage toward a freer life. Ten miles a day was their pace. Says Trumbull, their earliest historian:

> "They had no guide but their compass; made their way over mountains, thro' swamps, thickets and rivers, which were not passable but with great difficulty. They had no cover but the heavens, nor any lodging but that which simple nature afforded them. They drove with them a hundred and sixty cattle, and by the way, subsisted on the milk of their cows. Mrs. Hooker was borne through the wilderness upon a horse-litter. The people generally carried their packs, arms and some utensils. They were nearly a fortnight on their journey. This adventure was the more remarkable, as many of this company were persons of figure, who had lived, in England, in honor, affluence and > p. 73 delicacy, and were entire strangers to fatigue and danger".[5]

They would never be strangers to it again while they lived. Their share in the founding of Hartford was in part their exchange for comfort and safety.

p. 77 Thomas Hooker's 1638 sermon in Hartford is a natural first. It survives in outline only.[6] Presumably delivered before the General Court in adjourned session, it reduced to clear aphoristic statement the essentials of civil government as already
p. 78 practiced in the Connecticut elections of the preceding year. He chose as his text, Deuteronomy 1, 13,

> "Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you".

As is now well known even to casual students of American political history, he argued for principles which to later times are the very commonplaces of democratic practice, but were not yet commonplaces in 1638.

> Government should be by universal suffrage.
> In the choice of magistrates, the "people" must rule.
> Franchise is a trust.
> The foundation of authority is laid in the free consent of the governed.
> Those who appoint can also set a limit to power.
> It would be a good thing to commit both the powers and the limitations of power to writing.[7]

A year later these principles were written, presumably by Thomas Hooker, minister, Roger Ludlow, lawyer, and John Haynes, one-time governer of Massachusetts, into the Fundamental Orders of Connecticut. This was the first written constitution in history.

That these ideas were neither original with Thomas Hooker nor unique in Connecticut practice is well known; also that they were neither new nor startling to those who listened to this sermon. Every self-gathered church from the beginning had elected officers from among themselves, practiced consent of the governed, and in all their doings proceeded on the assumption that all power needful for the functioning of the society was vested in the membership alone. Every incorporated town had run its own affairs, elected its own officers and its representatives to the General Court. Thomas Hooker, on this occasion (and it was an important thing to do) was reducing known practice to clear-cut axiomatic principles as basis for civil as well as ecclesiastical government. In do doing he voiced one of the most deeply shared convictions of Puritan Dissent, and gave self-government a wider basis and a deeper significance, as well as a Scriptural warrant.

p. 79 One need only qualify the praise so often accorded him for this sermon by remembering that the basic principles of self-government, as he asserted them on this occasion, were not so democratic as they sound to later ears. Like John Winthrop, John Cotton, and other early shapers of opinion in such matters, Thomas Hooker put certain limitations on the word "people". He did not mean all the people, acting directly. Even in his own Hartford circle of church members, he did not mean all the people. He believed that > "The debating matters of difference, first before the whole body of the church, will doubtless break any church in pieces, and deliver it up unto loathsome contempt".8

Therefore, if he feared debate on some action to be propounded, he saw to it beforehand that the elders were informed as to the action he desired, so that when the meeting was called, they could move quickly to bring it to pass before the lay opposition could be vocal one way or the other. Such a court-packing scheme was what Samuel Stone, Hooker's successor, had in mind when he uttered the much-quoted aphorism that a congregational church is a "speaking Aristocracy in the face of a silent democracy". Such a notion made trouble, plenty of trouble, even in Hartford's long-drawn-out "Scandal of an incurable breach". Luckily, however, the principles which Thomas Hooker had so clearly asserted had already been put into practice in many places, and as soon as they were better understood by the rank and file and had been ventured by a few more recalcitrant laymen in critical situations, it would be forever impossible for the pulpit to control the meeting or foreordain the result by any such manipulation as Thomas Hooker had sanctioned. But so to say is not to minimize the importance of his justly famous sermon at this early date.

Furthermore, when a hundred years later timid ones among the clergy and worried magistrates in the pew were arguing whether or not the minister might justifiably bring affairs of government into the pulpit, it would be precisely a hundred years too late to admit the matter to discussion. Before the first election preacher had solemnized the annual voting day with a two-hour sermon on what makes a godly ruler and how the people should behave toward him, the first principles of a working democracy had been written into village history. Thomas Hooker in his early Hartford days had been one of those who had written them most legibly and also mot indelibly. "3rdly", as he put it, among the "Uses of Exhortation" on this 1638 occasion, "to persuade us, as God hath given us liberty, to take it". He and his congregation had already taken it when they set off through the woods in the spring of 1636.
p. 80

Chap.5
p.88

In his essay on "The Preacher", Emerson was later to say of his own contemporaries of the cloth, "The clergy are as like as peas". He could not have said it of his first American ancestor's generation. Nothing about these men can be run into a mold. They were individuals, often so thorny in their individuality that they could not long walk the same path in amity. Their small kingdoms must perforce be separate. John Cotton and Thomas Hooker, looked back upon by an admiring eye, may indeed have seemed the "Lither and Melancthon of New England", but they could never have played such roles side by side in Cambridge. No town was big enough for the two of them at once and fortunately one of them had the good sende to know it. Fortunately also, the wilderness was wide and they separated in time to avoid the explosion which would certainly have come had they continued to pitchtheir tents in adjoining fields along the Charles.

NOTES: Chapter 5:

2. His subject was "The Danger of Desertion," Jer. 14,9: "We are called by thy name; leave us not". London, 1641,p.20. For a discussion of this sermon, see Edwin D. The Houghton family traces back through 8 centuries, the first of the line in England having been Sir Roger de Bush, one of the knights who fought with William, the Conqueror, at the battle of Hastings, 1066. He was gr. a big estate in what later was named Lancashire & on which Houghton Castle was built. It is a splendid example of the Norman-Gothic type of architecture (still standing 1931). The present name was originally De Hoeton, derived from the chief manor being located on an almost inaccessible eminence called "Hoeton" or "high town". Arms are recorded in the family name as follows: Crest, a bull, passant, argent, & the motto is "Malgre le tort."

John[1] was one of the garrison, 10 Feb. 1676, when the town was attacked & destroyed by Indians under King Philip, with great loss of life. John went to Charlestown for a short time in order to secure the safety of his family, but later returned to Lancaster, where he lived until his death.

English Ancestry -
The 1st of family enjoying any mention is John de Huse, who in 1066, A.D., rec'd. a grant of manor in Berkshire, Eng. From him in unbroken line John Howys was descended.
The family settled in Norfolk co. in 1457, A.D., reign of Henry VI from which time Besthorpe was the family seat for 7 generations. "Thorpe" is old English for town or hamlet, and "Bes" is corruption of best, as it was an extremely fertile piece of land.

The following gives the succession of Besthorpe:

- HOWYS -

John Howys 1457
Robert " 1508, date of will
Thomas " 1555 (Coat of arms granted 1519 Reign of Henry VIII)
Richard " 1559.
James " son of Thomas, 1592
Robert " " " " 1618, married Ann of Caralton Rode, to which place he removed and was succeeded at Besthorpe by eldest son, James
James son of Robert - date unknown
John " " " of Besthorpe, died in 1663 served as Sheriff of Norfolk Co. & altered sp. to HOWES Thomas " " " - date uncertain (here the name is spelled HOWSE) married Tabitha, dau. of John Roope, of Morningthorpe, or Thorpe Hall Manor, which has since been seat of Howse family.
This place was settled in 1186 by Henry, son of Jocelyn, who had it of the Vauxes, by the Abbot of Bury. In 1198 it was settled on Wido, (guido or guy) who assumed surname of Thorpe. was sold to gurness of Boyland Hall (circa 1412), in whose possession it remained until it came into the Roope family, prob. by marriage.

It was the 3rd son of Robert viz: Thomas, who was the father of the Thomas' who ♀ to America w/ his wife Mary Burr & settled in that part of Yarmouth, on Cape Cod in 1637 (now Dennis).
John Howse, who d. 1663, altered sp. to HOWES. Said to have been caused by a mistake made in some important legal document, bearing upon the family estates.

cccL #31 ~~Here Lies~~

Here Lies
Mr. Thomas Howes,
And on his right, his wife Mary Burr.
She adorned her character by a discreet and virtuous life.
They were natives of England,
and emigrated in the year 1637.
Their births, deaths and marriages unknown.

We, their descendants, from a sense of filial duty, consecrate this stone to the first Howes that came to America.
'Twas from the central part of Briton's Isle they came,
And on Columbia's soil did propagate
a name;
We their descendants the Patriarch own
And to the first Howes, do dedicate this stone.

In 1834 a monument was erected in the Howes burying ground in Dennis carrying the above inscription.

Swift's "Old Yarmouth" (p. 48) gives the inscription somewhat differently. He says the stone is on the E. declivity of a hill to the N.E. of his family seat, where and many of his descendants are buried.

HURLBUT

THOMAS^1 HURLBUT - a blacksmith by trade and a Scotchman by tradition.
b. abt. 1610 ; d. after 18 May 1682 (according to deed to his son Stephen) (W.L.Rec.III, 145)
m. in Eng.? - Sarah ? , dau. of
b. Eng. ; d.

He is supposed to have been one of the 11 male passengers who embarked at London 11 Aug. 1635, in the "Bachelor" ("Bachilor") in company with Capt. Lyon Gardiner, under patent to erect a fort at Saybrook, at the mouth of the Conn. River. Coming over with him were his wife and a female servant. Thomas may have been an employee under Capt. Gardiner or a soldier under his command. He was located at Saybrook with Gardiner where he was "conspicious for coolness & bravery" in the fight with the Pequot Indians when they attacked the fort in 1637. He was wounded by an arrow in the fight. After the war, he established himself at Wethersfield, Conn., being one of the early settlers of that place as well as the first blacksmith; clerk of the "Train Band" in 1640; Dep. to Gen. Court, Grand Juror, and also constable in 1644. It appears on the records that he received various tracts of land in the several divisions of the town which were recorded together in 1647. In 1660 the town of Wethersfield granted him Lot 39 - one of the "four score acre lots" (in Naubuc, east side of the river) which he later sold to Thomas Hollister. For his services in the Indian wars, the assembly voted him a grant of land of 120 acres 12 Oct. 1671. It was supposed that he died soon after this date as no evidence appears that the land was set off to him during his life. It was not until 1694, on the petition of John^3 Hurlbut, Jr., of Middletown, a grandson of the settler & soldier, that it was set off. Granted 160 acres for services under Lion Gardiner in Pequot war. (Stiles-Vol.?)

Defective early records of Wethersfield have preserved only the record of birth of 1 of his 6 sons and no names of daughters if any. During the contention that existed in the church of Wethersfield, the early records of both the town and church, it is understood, disappeared.

"Hulburt" - this sp. common on Wethersfield Records suggests the possible correctness of an idea already advanced that the name is an abbrev. of what was formerly Haliburton. A correspondent claims to have counted some 20 different spellings - from Holabird to Hurlbut. "Our English Surnames," published in London 1873, by Bardsley, says it belongs to the class of nicknames, like Shakespeare, being derived from an old weapon, called whirlbat, which was held, or whirled, by the hand.

He was also a blacksmith and after coming of age worked at his trade in Wethersfield and Killingworth. (Chap. 7, Vol.1, for land holdings.) At age of 27, he entered into contract, 25 Oct. 1669, with the first settlers of Middletown to locate there and "do the Town's work of smithing for seven yrs." He became a large landholder and prominent man in Middletown. He was made a freeman in 1671 and was Sgt. in the Train-band. His est. totalled £373.15s.6d. His shop, house & home land - £100; other lots £160; cattle etc. £46; smith's tools, etc. £10.

HOXIE HOUSE

Cape Cod's Oldest House in Cape Cod's Oldest Town

Main Fireplace

High on a bluff overlooking beautiful Shawme Lake, in the center of historic Sandwich, in its original location, rests the Hoxie House. The famous Hoxie House was acquired by the Town of Sandwich and in 1959 was fully and authentically restored.

This "salt box" house is named after Captain Abraham Hoxie, a whaling captain who owned the house in the middle 1800's. Many historians of the Town say it was built in 1637 the same year the Town was settled by the "ten men from Saugus." The often mentioned chimney brick bearing the date 1637 is not to be found, but found or not it makes for interesting speculation. The restoration of the House has been kept to the 1680-90 period. It is a first period house and has been restored and furnished to that effect and is truly representative of early colonial construction.

Many interesting features such as gun stock posts, chamfered beams, wide floor boards etc., are to be found in the Hoxie House and can best be appreciated by a visit to the house, where you will be given a guided tour and shown all the points of interest.

Sandwich is very grateful to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts for the splendid pieces of furnishings they have loaned us for exhibit.

In 1637 Plymouth Colony granted to "Ten Men From Saugus" the right to settle enough land for "three score families".

Life in the early days of Sandwich was rugged and simple. The settlers spent much of their time in securing the necessities of life. The men worked the fields and the women worked in the homes preparing the food, making clothes and providing many of the comforts that we today take for granted. At the Hoxie House you will see just how these early settlers lived.

As time passed and the industrial development of the country took place, industry came to Sandwich. The most famous industry in Sandwich was that of glass making and today even though the factory has long since been out of existence, the glass made here has become world famous, and the best of it can be seen at the Sandwich Glass Museum.

Today Sandwich is a town that has retained its antiquity and natural charm. We have a fine historical center, authentically restored, and are proud to welcome you to visit with us.
